Hey girl-
I know I've been obnoxious to you all this year, but it's only 'cause I like you (but not that much - JJ.) It's really aggravating watching you get straight A's when I couldn't do it. Oh well. I'll forgive you.

Ann

Purcell,

To a very smart girl whom I admire very much. Keep up the good work - I know you'll go far! Even more so than I hope you don't forget me! I know I won't forget you! Even though I've changed since I've known you - for the better"

Your friend,

Purcell - our last hour - interesting year to the end. I can't say that I've enjoyed the comics but they provided you with endless fights & the riders entertainment! Best of next year.

Susan

Purcell,
Its been nice having you on the boat-I hope enjoyed talking

Purcell,
This year has been great and I'm glad we're good friends. We have been friends for so long that I don't think I'll ever forget you (no matter how hard I try!) Next year we better keep in touch.

REMEMBER ALL THE GOOD TIMES WE'VE HAD!

Love,
Anne

WE'RE MOVING OUT . . .

IN NEW DIRECTIONS

New Directions! Students saw them everywhere when school opened August 29, 1984. One of the most important differences was a new principal, Edward Ellis, and assistant principal, Barry Beers, standing in the halls in the morning, directing students to classes and helping out. Both were new to the job, but not new to the school. Mr. Ellis was serious about his philosophy on youth when he said, "Youth! The best return on anyone's investment!" When Mr. Beers was asked how he felt about his new position, he said, "I'm really enjoying it. I'm finding out that I have to come in earlier in the mornings, and stay later in the afternoons, but the sophomore class has been great so far and the teachers have all been patient and cooperative. It's fun! I enjoy it."

Not only were there changes in the administration, but there were changes in the building. The new half lockers downstairs and by the gym provided much needed extra space, although it took a while for people to get used to balancing on their knees to open their locks!

If students took any science courses during the day, they may have had the benefit of using the new science labs which were added last summer. Mr. Bill Williams, Biology I and II teacher, explained that the increase in enrollment and the increase in science requirements created the need for two new classrooms and two new storage rooms. "We've got three teachers teaching extra science classes," Mr. Williams explained, "and now we have more storage space than we've ever had, so we've really increased." Jennifer Helsel

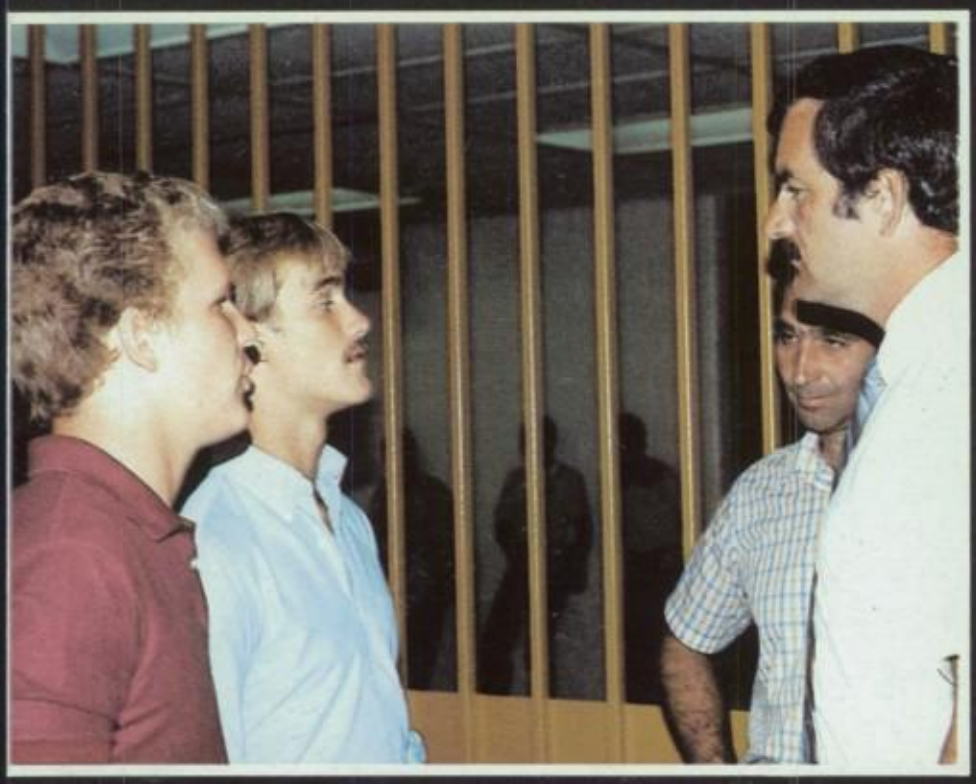
Underclassmen must learn to adapt to smaller lockers this year, as Rodney Wise is finding out.



Althea Murphy is a good example of a student proud of her work.
Proving that the principals are always there to help, Mr. Beers lends an ear to Ed Kwasnik and Bill Swanenburg in the Commons area.

CHANGES AROUND US

A true example of team work, John Champion and Jennifer Slatkin concentrate on some last minute studying.

The focus on academics intensified. Weighted grades, new course requirements, and an Advanced Studies Diploma were part of new opportunities for students to excell and better prepare for the future. (Yes, there is life after Lafayette!) For freshmen, one more unit of science was required to graduate, along with one more unit of science, math, or vocational education required as an elective. Students could work for a twenty-two credit Advanced Studies Program and grades in more difficult classes were given increased grade point values. Those students with a 3.0 average in either a twenty-two or twenty credit program qualified for a special State Department of Education or Governor's Seal when they graduated.

Some changes dealt with courses and classes; other changes dealt with people, especially all those freshmen! During the day, students felt they couuldn't walk down the halls of school for a minute without bumping into another freshman. This year's freshman class was one of the biggest ever in the history of the school, according to Virginia Carey.

When asked about his first impressions upon arriving at Lafayette, one freshman remarked, "I was lost! It was also really weird not having any windows!" Another ninth grader said she was, "A little bit scared of getting lost," but compared to her old school, she exclaimed, "I like it a lot better — very much better!"

This year was special for a variety of reasons, but we hope that the new roads chosen while here led to a promising future for everyone. Jennifer Helsel

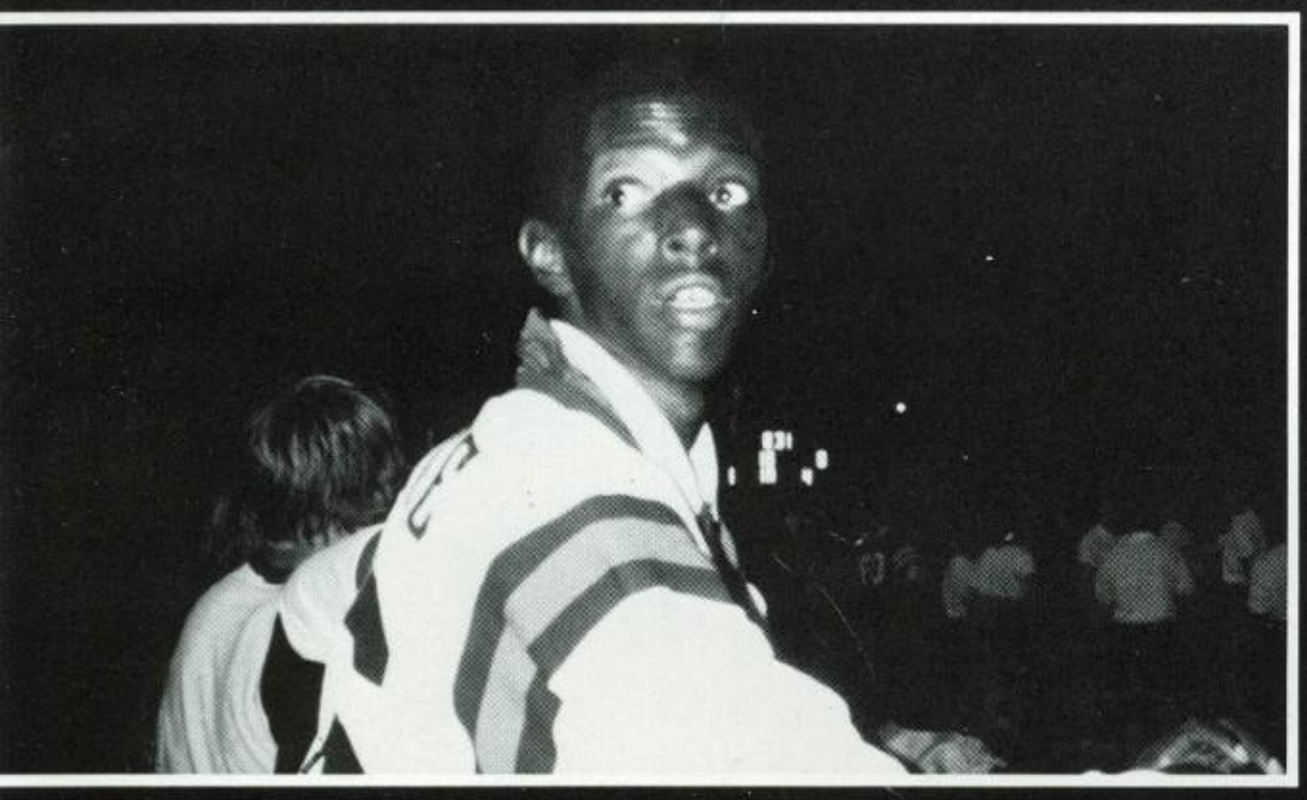
STUDENT LIFE

A lively crew gathers for a victory party at Giorgio's after the ball game.

Students didn't necessarily branch out in New Directions, but they certainly came from all directions. On an average morning, many students grabbed a quick sausage biscuit at McDonalds or maybe a coke at 7-11 for breakfast. Students pulled into the parking lot in anything from the old family cars, to sportscars, to trucks with lift kits and huge tires. From the cars emerged students who took on a variety of new styles. The punk look was the newest — spike hair-dos, safety pin earrings and nylon pants covered with zippers. There was also the traditional look of Levis and shirts or the dressy look of heels and ties.

After a long hectic day, yells of: "I'll meet you in town," "I'll see you at my house," or "I'll call you later," could be heard throughout the halls. Then it was on to aerobics class, or maybe the Pottery and the Outlet mall for working students. The die-hard soap opera fans rushed home to tune in to their favorite channel. Then there were those that simply wanted to relax, listen to an album, and prepare for the next average hectic school day. Jackie Mather and Jennifer Helsel.

J.V. player Bruce Johnson wonders where everybody is going.



"I know there's a restroom around here somewhere," thinks Danny Lee as he studies his map.

CONFUSING OPENING DAYS

"The first day, I felt like a little white mouse who was put in a lab to be tested." This is what freshman Joanne Lappas thought about her first day. Not only the Freshmen, however, were confused by their new schedules. Even some returning veterans had trouble finding their way through the white walled halls with brown tweed carpet.

For example, senior Jackie Mather said, "Every year I have to look at the map on the back of my Lafayette notebook to find my way around. I swear it's the truth!"

Junior Jennifer Thompson added, "I stand at the band hall and get myself oriented."

The real confusion, however, started when students had to figure out which lunch they had. More than a few people ended up with both lunches on that first day. Not only was it confusing to figure out which lunch, but also to decide where the food lines began. Were those people with the funny haircuts in line or not?

As classes ended, many unanswered questions filled the heads of the anxious students. Would their bus be delayed or would it leave thirty seconds after the bell rang? What was their bus number? Was it forty-two or forty-three? Would their homeroom teacher give out locker combinations tomorrow? All in all the day turned out well. Students knew they'd figure it all out eventually. Rusty Norwood Tanja Tacosa and Catherine Kramer express surprise after finding out that lunch doesn't last from 10:49 to 12:24.

"Why do they need to know my car's name?" thinks Kelly White as she fills out the information forms.

Donna Phegley, Robin Rigsby, Darla Owen, and Mark Sanderson prove that four heads are better than one when it comes to finding your way around.

THE DAY IN THE LIFE OF A STUDENT

The day in the life of a student began with the ringing of an alarm at about 6:00 a.m. If you were good, you could do the same routine without even waking up: dragging out of bed and into the shower, blow drying your hair, getting dressed, eating stale Cheerios, or Raisin Bran with no raisins, and finally running after the bus after it had already passed the house.

Once you got to school, the journey began. If you rode the bus, it was the hysterical chitter-chatter from the bus to your locker. But, if you drove, it was like "All Quiet on the Western Front," with the long hike from the parking-lot to the school.

Then came first period. You heard Mr. Miller say, "Let's all pause for a moment of silence." This was when your classmates either completed their last night's history homework or fell back asleep.

It was about third period when everyone was awake, with hollering in the halls and running to geometry trying to beat out the bell.

Lunch was a pepper-upper. You got to talk with all of your friends and sat with the same people at the same table everyday.

Finally sixth period came and this is when you began fidgeting and talking and looking at your watch every other minute. Then all of a sudden, came that familiar phrase, "May I please have your attention for the afternoon announcements." Then the final bell rang and you were off either running to the buses or to your car in the parking lot. This was the typical day in the life of a student. Robert Matschke.

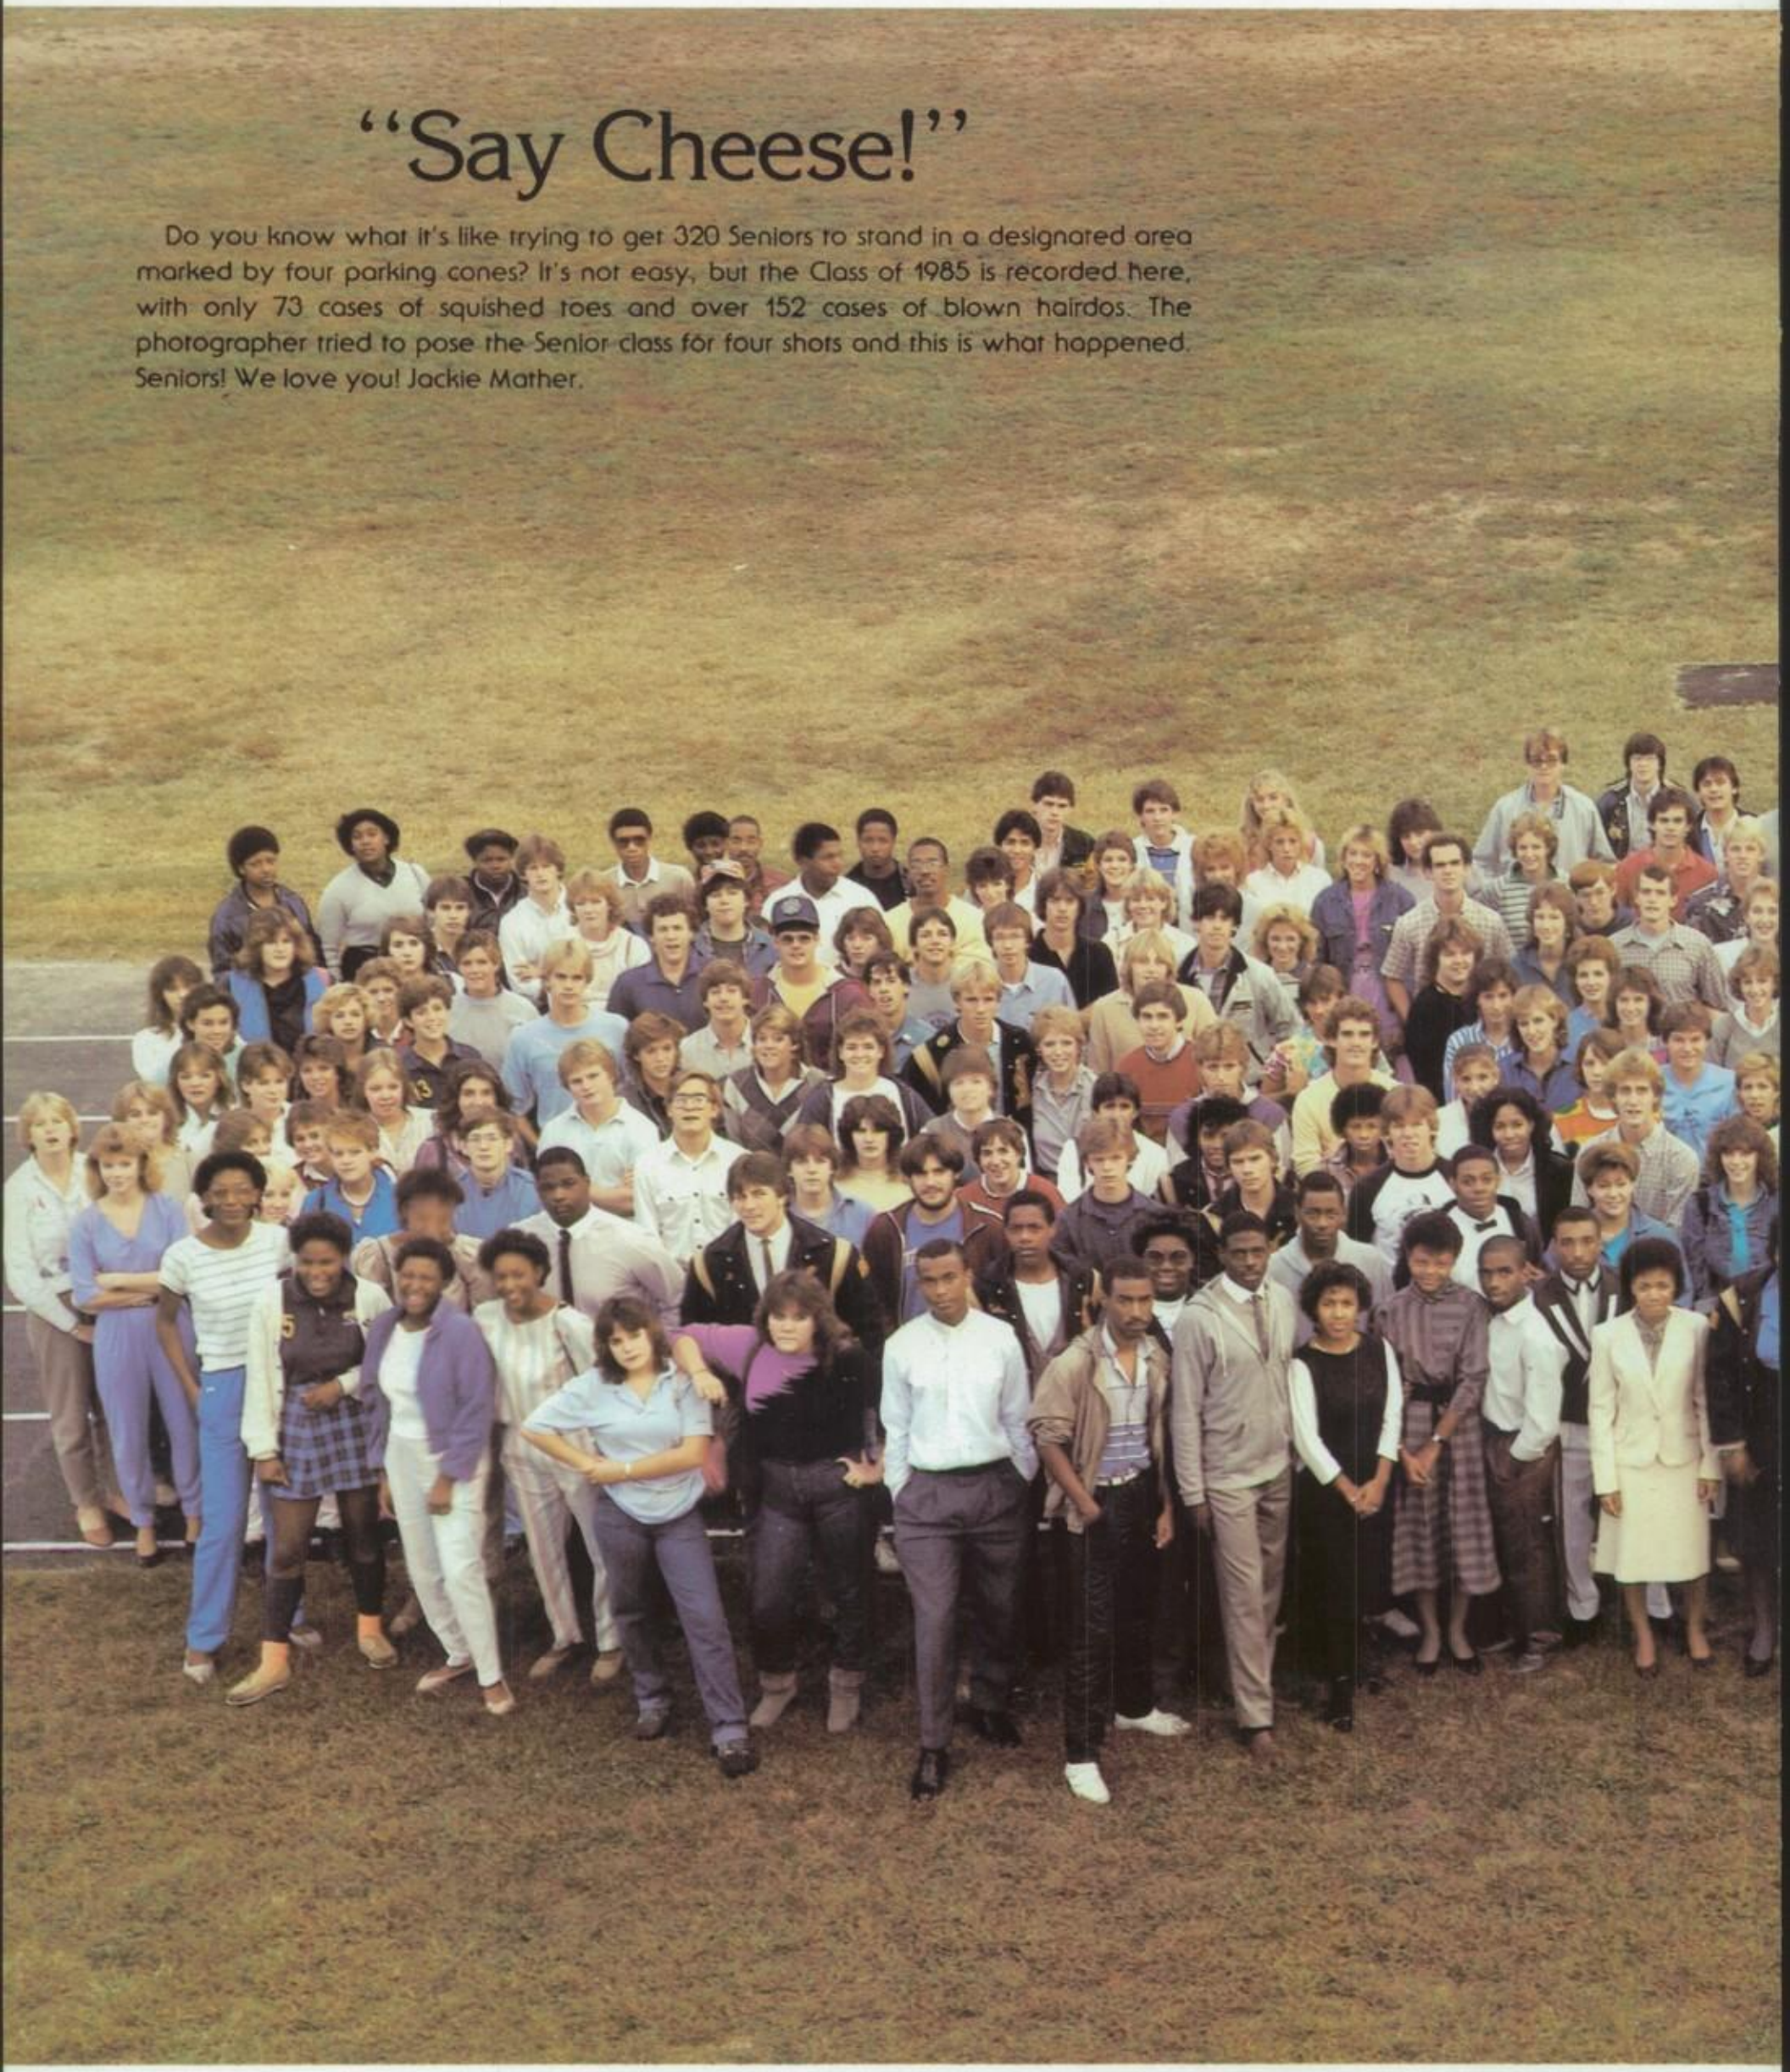
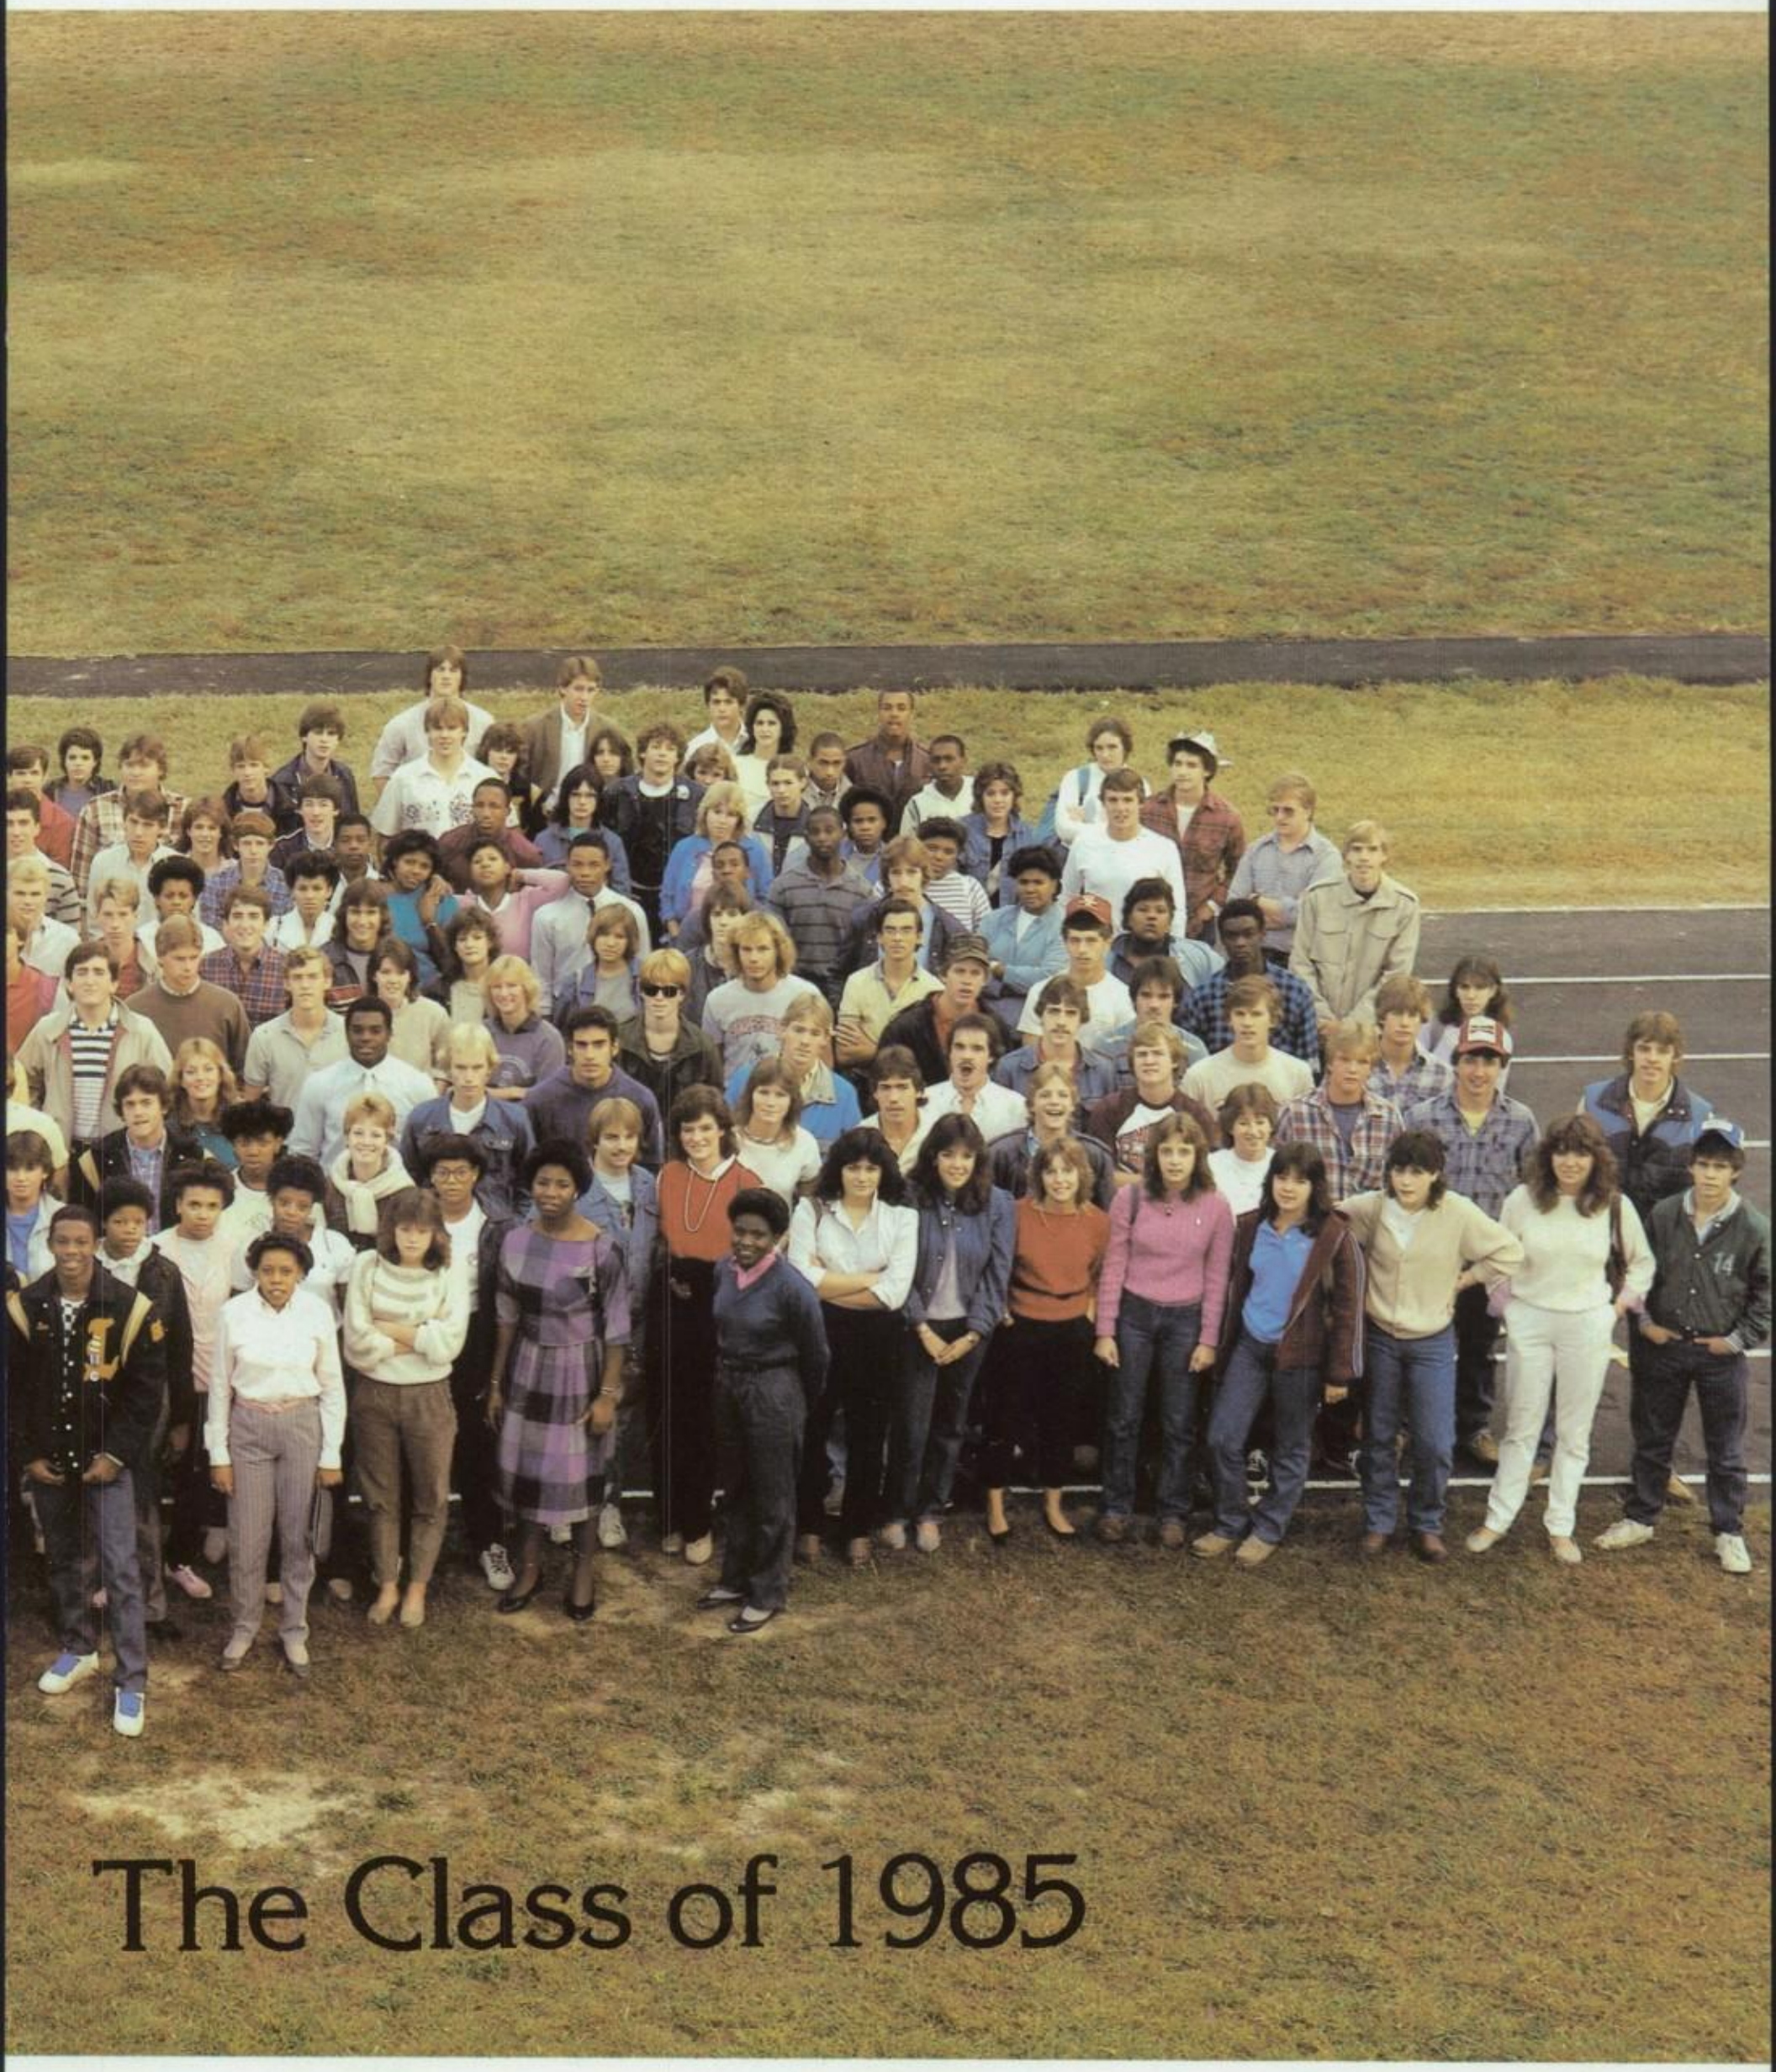
The photographer tried to pose the Senior class for four shots and this is what happened. Seniors! We love you! Jackie Mather.





The Class of 1985

WHAT'S YOUR EXCUSE?

OKAY, WHAT'S YOUR EXCUSE?
WHAT IS IT, HUH? WHAT'S YOUR EXCUSE THIS TIME?
WHAT IS IT, HUH? WHAT IS IT? WHAT'S YOUR EXCUSE? HUH?
I DON'T EVEN KNOW WHAT YOU'RE TALKING ABOUT!
SO THAT'S YOUR EXCUSE!

When asked how they would react to certain problem situations during a school day, both students and teachers came up with some unusual excuses. In such instances as being late to class, or missing class totally, some typical excuses were "The halls were too crowded" or "There was a fight and I couldn't get through."

These reasons didn't help very much when students were handed an ASD (After School Detension) slip to sign. Students may find that the memorization of even a few of the following explanations may prove helpful in a situation which falls something short of excusable. Who knows, one may find these explanations or quotes even more believable than the truth! — Lynn Drewry

COMING TO CLASS LATE

1. "This big purple glob stuck to the bottom of my shoe and wouldn't let go." — Lynn Drewry
2. "When I opened my locker a big fuzzy bear grabbed me and pulled me in and I had to fight for my life to get out." — Robert Matschke
3. "Sorry, I met Mr. Reagan in the hall." — Jean Smets

MISSING CLASS TOTALLY

1. "I needed a second lunch." — Ralph Digges
2. "I waited for the nurse but she never came back." — Missy Marvin
3. "My dog called me. He was really upset, he and his dogfriend got in a terrible argument and I had to play match-maker." — Tina Buttrom

NEEDING TO BORROW THE CAR

1. "I ran out of gas and need to use your car" — Chip Rains
2. "I need to go buy a dictionary for English class tomorrow." — Charlene Judkins
3. "I need to take one of my friends to the hospital to have the baby but the friend happens to be a boy." — Clarissa Ashlock

STANDING UP YOUR DATE

1. "I'm going to my friend's house." — Tonya Sheppard
2. "I thought it was next weekend." — Tracy Thompson
3. "I'll have a head-ache." — Lisa Johnson

TURNING DOWN A DATE

1. "I have other plans." — Ronnie Burns
2. "I have another boyfriend." — Constance Richards
3. "I had some problems with my parents and can't go out this weekend." — Phillis McCallum

FORGETTING A BOYFRIEND OR GIRLFRIEND'S BIRTHDAY

1. "I got it mixed up with someone else's birthday!" — Ralph Digges
2. "I didn't know you were born." — Wesley Cardman
3. "I really wanted to surprise you with nothing so I didn't get anything, SURPRISE." — Clarissa Ashlock

COMING HOME AFTER CURFEW

1. "The car broke down." — Christine Patton
2. "I didn't know I even had a curfew!" Shelly Epley
3. "I was home but I had to go back outside and turn off the lights to the car and couldn't find the car because it was too dark." — Jesica Cien

REASONS WHY YOU WERE EXCEEDING THE SPEED LIMIT

1. "I was on my way to court to pay off my last speeding ticket and I was late.." — Lynn Drewry
2. "Somebody was chasing us but now they're gone." — Kim Bowden
3. "I didn't realize I was going that fast." — Tracy Thompson

NOT CLEANING YOUR ROOM

1. "It's not dirty enough yet." — Ray Heath
2. "There's still room to walk." — Michael Cleary
3. "I couldn't get in." — Robynne Hernandez

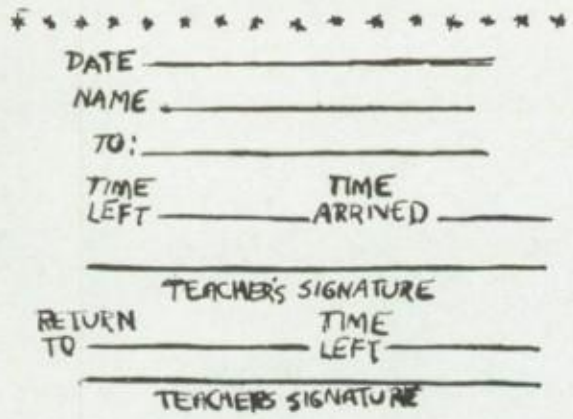
SO WHATS YOUR EXCUSE?

"Why are you so late?" says Mrs. Canning.

"Um Hm-m," Mrs. Canning replies.

"I don't believe a word of that," she murmurs.

"He's missed 14 days in a row," Mrs. Sheilds thinks.



"I don't want after school again!" Jamie Hawkins argues with Mr. Chevious.

"Oh, that French homework!" says Christy Hodge.

Spirit Week started with the spirit links contest. The tight race between the Seniors and Juniors caught everyone's attention when the afternoon announcements came on. In each lunch, students heard screaming and cheering each time someone gave a substantial amount of money. The final result was seniors first, juniors second, sophomores third, and freshmen, last.

While all this was taking place, students were wearing outrageous outfits throughout the week. Monday was "Confused Tourist Day," Tuesday was "Hat, Grub, and Glasses Day," Wesnesday was "Hilarious All-Out Day," Thursday was "Dress to Impress Day," and Friday was the ever-popular "Blue and Gold Day." This was the wacky week of November 5-9. Robert Matschke.

COMING HOME

"CREAM KECOUGHTAN," SAID THE SENIORS.

Friday afternoon, November 9, was the Lafayette Homecoming parade. Confusion about the parade's location was cleared up before the pep rally. The Williamsburg Police Department decided to start the parade at the Court House.

The game started at 7:30 p.m. at Cooley Field. The Rams played the Kecoughtan Warriors. Although the Rams lost 23-17, it was one of the best-played games of the year. At half-time, the winning float and homecoming queen were announced. The seniors took the float honors and the homecoming queen was senior cheerleader, Royces Banks.

The dance, held Saturday, was given by the SCA financed with money from the spirit link contest. There was food and drink. Many flowers decorated the room and were given to the princesses at the end of the evening. The walls were covered with spirit links. The music had the beat, and the students were on their feet. This was Lafayette's Homecoming.

While some fads, like rattails, were introduced, others like Vans and spike hair cuts, said their farewells. Still others, like jean jackets and inside-out sweatshirts, held tight and short hair maintained its long stay.

MEMORIES FROM LAST SPRING

Last year's spring musical, directed by Mr. Jack Poland, was West Side Story. Although the play had a tragic ending, both students and faculty enjoyed putting on the show.

The band had difficult music scores to play, and deserve recognition for their hard work. Long practices that sometimes ran until 11:30, and determination to succeed finally paid off for the cast on numbers such as, "Prologue," "The Jet Song," and "Quintet."

West Side Story's grande finale occurred in the last scene on Saturday night, when Maria (Megan Rhyne) not only brought tears to the audience, but also cried real tears herself.

Though West Side Story experienced a few minor difficulties, such as rain drops that kept falling on the skylight, a gun that didn't go off when triggered, and props that would appear and disappear at various performances, the audience was cooperative. The attendance was also better than that of most previous musicals. The four leads were played by; Megan Rhyne, Sean Perkinson, Margy Exton, and David Hanny.

On May Twenty-fifth, Nineteen eighty four,
There was an awful lot of excitement and glamour.

It was an ordinary Friday or so it seemed.
Yet everyone had a special glow and gleam.

Some had early release that day,
And the fifth and sixth period teachers had a lot to say.

Why? You ask and ask you might.
Because, of course, it was Prom Night!

Prom began at eight and ended at midnight.
While there we danced to the sounds of "Freedom Flight."

REAL WORLD?

The countdown started the first day of the freshman year. The Seniors called the anticipation "Senioritis" — thoughts during senior year were filled with graduation.

Graduation was held on June 9, 1984, at William and Mary Hall. The Hall was filled with 338 very excited arrivals into the "REAL WORLD" (as our teachers and parents have been describing it for four years.)

The graduates waited anxiously in their seats as Mr. Kellison handed out the diplomas, unaware this would be his last graduation as principal. In July he became Assistant Superintendent for the Williamsburg-James City County School System.

ACADEMICS

Telex computers are one of the new features used by Jennifer Ashby in Word Processing.

Academically, students branched out in New Directions. Three new courses offered students more options in the classroom.

Engineering drawing provided students an experience with the technical problems that could face them as engineers. "Students used CAD — computer assisted drafting," said Jack Carey, engineering drawing instructor.

Advanced Placement Computer Science involved the Pascal computer language and emphasized data structure. "At the end of the course, students had learned about stacks, queries, linked lists and pointers," said Mrs. Wendy Geiger, Advanced Placement Computer Science instructor.

"We had lots of neat instruments in Earth Science," said Cyndi Mazza. "We measured weather and learned about astronomy, geology, oceanography, and meteorology. It was a good course!"

Several new teachers arrived, and two of them redecorated the interior of their classrooms! Miss Mari Spiri and Mrs. Stephanie McConachie from the English department created an artificial window that featured real leaves. Mr. Steve Bishop in the math department "came home." In 1980 he graduated from Lafayette High School.

The National Honor Society, sponsored by Mrs. Bobbye Alexander, was created to promote enthusiasm for scholarship, promote leadership, and develop character in students.

In order to qualify for NHS, a student must have maintained a 3.25 grade point average. Each spring, new members are chosen at an induction ceremony when all juniors and seniors are present.

The NHS officers were: Leslie Sadler, President; Stephen Kiefer, Vice President; Amy Gallagher, Secretary; John Champion, Treasurer; and John Souza, Reporter.

This year there was a new national constitution, and new local by-laws were written.

Typical annual projects included giving flowers and singing at the Pines, tutoring students, and acting as aides to administrators and teachers.

Patty Hazelwood might be concentrating on some future projects for the NHS.

Amy Siemon proves with a smile that Honor Society members don't have to be serious students all the time.

Consulting their sponsor, Ms. Alexander, are Alan Migneault and Danny Price.

GOING FOR THE GOLD

The Golden Ram and Number One Award honored all that received them. They were founded by Mr. Kellison, principal, in the 1983-1984 school year.

Straight A students, students who brought outstanding honor to the school through in and out of school activities, and teachers who gave exceptional service, received the Golden Ram Award. Students who were on the A and B honor roll, or students who made significant contributions to the school received the Number One Award. Mr. Ellis said the awards were given to those who go "above and beyond the call of duty."

Recipients of the awards were recognized during Awards Assemblies, faculty meetings or at banquets. They also received their names in the daily paper.

In addition to these awards there were bulletin boards and appreciation boards in the Commons to recognize students. Some teachers even sent postcards to students' parents with "happy messages," and Mr. Ellis sent out information on teachers' accomplishments in his "Week at a Peek" summary.

Mr. Ellis felt that it was very important to recognize those who had done well and he wanted to "keep the good things in gear" and praise those who had excelled.

Of course there are disadvantages to every issue, but Mr. Ellis only saw one major drawback. "It is a disadvantage and a disappointment when someone is overlooked," responded Mr. Ellis. — Lynda Byrd

MORE THAN

Feral pigs can be interesting once you get used to them, as Mindy Gariti and Kara O'Toole have discovered.

Advanced Placement Biology teacher Mr. Bill Williams had more students enrolled in his class than he'd ever had before. Over seventy students took AP Biology, as opposed to an average of fifteen students in several other schools. There were many reasons for the enthusiasm.

Williams's biggest goal for the class was to prepare his students for college academics. Major projects during the first semester included a study of anatomy and physiology by dissecting a fetal pig and preparing a skeleton.

Second semester there were two library assignments for which students were asked to find scientific journals at Swem Library at the College of William and Mary and relate them to the designated topic. These were followed by a major term paper at the end of the year.

Williams had special reasons for scheduling the projects that he did. He explained, "I could very easily walk into the room and say, O.K. now I'm going to list the muscles and bones of the body. But that becomes artificial; the students have nothing to compare that to. I think it's worth giving them the opportunity to do the projects, so they can learn for themselves."

A number of students who've taken the course have come back from college and even graduate school to tell Mr. Williams how much the class helped them.

Russell Davis, 1983 graduate and now a William and Mary student said, "I found out how valuable the course was after I left. The projects we did, the tests we took, and material we covered prepared me for researching, college labs, and a lot more. I found I was ahead of a lot of other people."

Mr. Williams summed up his feelings when he said, "If, after taking AP Biology, students only got some biology out of it, but a lot of preparation for college, I would still feel gratified."

Jennifer Helsel

If more students were able to stand in front of classmates and teachers and get a message across, where did most of this new-found self-assurance come from? In many cases, the confidence came from Drama I-IV.

Drama teacher Mr. Jack Poland had two main objectives for his classes. For Drama I and II, his goal was to increase students' confidence on stage or in front of groups. For Drama III and IV the goal was to instill in students an interest in and appreciation for dramatic arts.

One of the first ways Mr. Poland got his students on stage was through "Charades." "Charades is a good way to get students to practice acting, without feeling inhibited," explained Poland. "Since it's in the form of a game, they don't even realize that they are acting."

But the Drama class wasn't all fun and games. Most of the homework given was in the form of oral presentations. Students created their own plays, and Poland rewarded imagination.

Major projects for Drama I and II included pantomimes, improvizations, and several short memorized scenes, which led up to an exam of one long, memorized scene.

For III and IV classes, there were six major acting units culminating in an assignment in which students took a character from a play and became that character with props, costumes, and a long monologue.

When asked what he felt made his class distinctive, Poland was positive. "The atmosphere makes it unique. The last thing you want to do when you're working for self-confidence is to construct a rigid class set up. My class is very loosely structured. Kids are encouraged to sit on the floor and relax. It helps a lot when they can feel comfortable and at ease in a learning environment."

JUST A CLASS

ebbie Meyers is one of the students who benefitted om the William and Mary courses.

There were some students who had the ability to move beyond the limits of the classroom, to pursue learning on a more advanced level. That's where the College of William and Mary came in.

The high school students were interviewed and accepted as part time students. Then, students registered for one or two semester classes, three college credits a piece.

Three days a week, students arranged for their own transportation, and left during or after school to attend class.

Debbie Meyers, a junior, said of her French 205 class, "I was surprised at how competitive the students were. They always corrected each other's mistakes."

Senior Greg Delos remarked that his German 206 class, "moved much faster than those in high school. You are responsible for learning and studying by yourself. There's nobody telling you when to get things done."

Annalisa Ekbladh, a junior, spoke favorably of her experience. "I had to go through a lot of interviews before enrolling. That really gave me a good idea of what to expect with other schools. Being surrounded by a college atmosphere also prepares you for the environment you will have to adjust to later."

A separate Introductory Law course was also offered at William and Mary, as a part of the Gifted and Talented program.

The law course was graded on a pass-fail basis, according to class attendance and participation. The students were also required to participate in a moot trial held at the law school. These trials were held using real judges, law students as lawyers, volunteer witnesses, and our students as the jury.

The class was conducted just like a first year law course, with seminars being given by a variety of professors and lawyers. On the first day of class, the students invented imaginary countries, and made their own laws. There was also a fake theft of a class ring, where students turned out their pockets and were frisked, to stress the points of individual rights.

For those students enrolled in the Vo-ech program, the morning bus ride did not nd at school. After arriving at school, hese eleventh and twelfth graders were ansported to the Peninsula Regional ocational/Technical Center in Denbigh. here they spent the first four periods of he day taking courses such as automotive echanics, electronics, masonry, and or-amental horticulture. Then they were used back to school for their last two class eriods.

GIVE VOICE

The debate and forensics teams are designed to promote excellence in public speaking, research skills and analytical ability.

Dr. Sharon Broadwater, Lafayette's debate coach, organized the team and took them to several Tidewater Debate League tournaments.

They developed their arguments for the topics of poverty and unemployment and joined the competition with their peers in the area. Now that they have established a firm base in their debating skills, they are looking forward to an even more successful season next year.

The forensics team's sponsor, Mrs. Patti Bowen, has gathered the support of many students over the past few years. In forensics, students participated in several different kinds of competition. These included reading prose or poetry, composing an original oratory and speaking extemporaneously.

The team not only competed in out-of-town tournaments, but hosted one at Lafayette this year. The forensics team achieved a growing number of award-winning speakers. — Cameron Fitzsimmons

Mr. Ellis, Principal, examines one of the many papers that passes his desk during a day. (In the insert) Mr. Ellis wows the bystanders at the Homecoming Parade as he rides a motorcycle and tosses candy to the crowds.

WORKING TOWARD COOPERATION

There was a certain group of people hat came to the athletic games and neets, coached teams, sponsored classes nd clubs, arranged field trips, came to oat meetings, plays and presentations, narched in parades, and dressed up for pirit Week.

These people shared jokes with students, ayed after school or gave up lunch eriods for extra tutoring, and took a per- nal interest in students. These individuals ere available for guidance, advice, or nversation. Who were these dedicated eople? The members of the faculty and aff.

Mr. Ellis, principal and leader of the facul- and staff, felt that Lafayette had taken a new direction. "We've made more technological advances. We're focusing on meeting the needs of the community and the students."

Mr. Ellis felt that the transition from junior high into ninth grade has been made easier by having more coordination between the schools. He was also pleased with the additional recognition for athletes and with the music boosters club.

When asked how the school was unique, Mr. Ellis replied, "We try to cater to almost every individual need. We have excellent vocational programs, advanced placement programs, extra curricular opportunities, student leadership and recognition. I think we have a very close knit student body and staff. I have heard lots of good talk to that effect from students and teachers."

Mr. Ellis had two specific goals in mind for the future. "We are working to achieve more coordination of curriculum between kindergarten and twelfth grade. We've begun work in this area in the English-Language Arts and Social Studies departments already."

Mr. Ellis concluded: "Times have changed and so have the attitudes of the students and staff. I think the general feeling now is that we're all in this thing together. We're working toward this enthusiasm, dedication, and cooperation."

I was showing the movie, "Gone With The Wind," in the Drama Room. I had been having trouble getting it started. I had the projector backed up so close to the wall that the tape was running off into pools on the floor. When I turned the lights on, "Gone With The Wind" was in heaps against the wall.

ORGANIZATIONS

The realization that band is a heavy load hits David Beckhouse.

New Directions for organizations meant the formation of three new clubs: Photography Club, Future Teachers of America, and the Career Association, which emerged from Jobs for Virginia Graduates.

The Photography Club was formed through the classes to raise money to equip the darkroom. "Through the selling of candy sales, the club members reached their goal quite easily," said Ms. Jackie Locke, sponsor. The club was co-curricular; members were enrolled in a photography class or had completed a course.

Future Teachers of America was formed, said Mr. Mark Chalmers and Mrs. June Owens, co-sponsors, to "provide experiences in service to others in such areas as Scouts, coaching, and as medical assistants." The club met every other Thursday at 2:30 in Room 625.

"From the classroom to a career" proclaimed the sign on Ms. Kaye Bush's classroom window. "Jobs for Virginia Graduates" was a new career program which assisted seniors in career awareness, job preparation, and placement.

The Career Association was a component of the Jobs for Virginia Graduates. Goals included leadership development, career preparation, citizenship and social development.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

"Pain the Warriors!" This was the slogan for the French Club in the Homecoming parade. Wielding loaves of French bread, the students marched down the street showing their school spirit. But this was not the only activity of the French Club. Members made video programs and put up a display window about French culture.

When they met every second Tuesday afternoon of the month, members spoke of French customs and a visit to France, looked at pictures, and listened to French music.

The Spanish Club participated in the Homecoming Parade with a float featuring a piñata resembling a Kecoughtan football player and a banner in Spanish with the slogan "Break Them Up."

The Spanish Club met every two weeks to celebrate the Spanish language and culture with speakers, slide presentations, and food typical of the many countries whose inhabitants speak Spanish.

The Latin Club, sponsored by Mrs. Anderson, took part in the Homecoming Parade. They also celebrated "Saturnalia" — a Roman festival which was in December in ancient times. In the Latin Club, the festival was celebrated on December 14, when students decorated with greens, gave gifts, and feasted.

In May, there was a Roman Banquet where members dressed in togas and stolas, reclined while eating with their fingers, and used ninth grade students as "slaves." All of this was done in carrying out the Roman tradition.

Some of the Latin Club members participated in the trip to Italy during spring vacation.

The German Club members played German games, ate German food and had German pen-pals with whom they exchanged letters. Their sponsor, Mrs. Sherman, helped provide club members with the opportunity of learning about a foreign national while enjoying themselves. — Penny Pappas

NEW FACES IN THE CROWD

AFS stands for American Field Service, and it is a social club centered around foreign exchange students. It provides an opportunity for students to learn more about cultures different from their own through personal relationships with AFS members.

Exchange students this year included Werner Glowka from Germany, Jean Smets from Belgium, and Niklaas Hoekstra from the Netherlands.

The activities of the AFS Club included two monthly meetings, fund raisers, and a hayride. Members also participated in volley ball games, faculty-student basketball games, canoe rides, a cable TV show and short term exchange trips to New York and Connecticut. — Penny Pappas

INTERNATIONAL NEWS

International Club member Tricia Dunnigan looks on at a meeting.

For the second consecutive year, Lafayette sent two representative delegations to the Model United Nations. This year's delegations portrayed the countries of Nicaragua and Turkey, with the members of the teams selected by the sponsor, Mrs. Dunnigan.

A simulation of activities held at the actual United Nations took place at Old Dominion University. During the three day conference students from throughout the region portrayed delegates from their assigned countries, and sometimes wore the costume of their country.

The Model U.N. required a large amount of research. It also required students to be aware of all current world affairs. The Model U.N. was a valuable learning experience because it not only helped develop research skills, but it also increased debating and public speaking abilities.

The International Club, sponsored by Mr. Silva, was organized to allow students to study world governments, organizations, cultures, religions and issues.

Students participated in models of Congress and the United Nations, discussions, field-trips and competitions. Speakers were occasionally invited to discuss areas of expertise in American or world governments with the students.

PRODUCTIVE CITIZENS, CAPABLE LEADERS

The main objective of the VICA organization was to "assist students in becoming mature and productive citizens of the working world," and sponsor Mr. Cyprus couldn't have said it better. Belonging to the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America gave students an opportunity to practice, and present examples of, the special skills they were interested in.

In addition to perfecting certain skills, the students ran for office in the clubs, served on committees, participated in contests, practiced public speaking, and conducted their meetings following strict formal procedures. All these programs were geared toward promoting leadership, as Mr. Cyprus explained. "We tell them it's OK to be in business as an electrician or a plumber, but don't just be in business, be a leader."

With all this, the VICA Club members worked voluntarily on individual projects related to their interests and then competed against other area students. There were opportunities to compete on a local, state, national, and even an international level.

Not only did the club work on individual projects but also on club projects such as very successful doughnut and candy sales. Some money from these activities went toward supporting VICA students who entered projects in competitions. Much of the money, however, was used to pay for an employers' banquet to honor the employers who took their time to guide students in their job experiences. — Jennifer Helsel

STUDENTS ENTER THE WORK FORCE WITH KNOWLEDGE AND PRIDE

he JVG club makes this transition a little easier for students.

Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) is a club designed to provide students with a better uderstanding of jobs and the community. The club contributed time helping out in the community. DECA helped social services with the distribution of cheese to needy families and sold carnations to raise money for the Sudden Infant Death program.

They had a contest at Newmarket North Mall to compete in their job areas with other DECA students and the winners went to a state wide competition. Students also went on field trips to Kees Business College, Colonial Williamsburg, and the Williamsburg Pottery to listen to speakers in their various job areas.

DECA could be fun as well as a learning experience. This year the advanced marketing class made a video fashion show. — Jackie Mather Jobs for Virginia Graduates was one of the new clubs established this year. In order to be a member of JVG, seniors had to be interviewed and then accepted into the club. The goal of the program was to aid graduating seniors in career development, job attainment, and job survival.

During the year Mrs. Bush found available jobs and taught the necessary skills to students. After graduation, students were placed in jobs and were assisted in obtaining promotions or raises during a 9-month follow-up period.

The club taught lessons in writing resumes, job interviews, skills, responsibility, positive attitude, managing an apartment, establishing credit, and budgeting, and basic goals and values. Mrs. Bush told her students, "not to be afraid to change jobs or to move up in a job, but to go for everything they want."

PLANNING FOR THE FUTURE

There were several organizations within the school that helped promote the future of youth. Four of these organizations were Health Occupation Students of America (H.O.S.A.), The Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA), the Future Homemakers of America (FHA), and the Future Teachers of America (FTA).

H.O.S.A. was an organization for students taking health-related courses such as "Practical Nursing." H.O.S.A., sponsored by Mrs. Helen Whelen, R.N., met once a month and attended a state conference.

H.O.S.A. also participated in several community activities such as taking blood pressures, working at "Health Fairs" and visiting or sending cards to the patients at the Pines Convalescent Home. Their motto was "Helping others . . . serving always."

The FBLA was an organization for students enrolled in a business-related course. The FBLA helped promote the development of leadership and business skills through classroom training, field trips, and guest speakers.

The FBLA worked to earn money for "ASK" — The Association for the Study of Childhood Cancer. Their social activities included visiting the Pines, and in March, the FBLA members participated in the TNCC regional competitive events. In April they attended the annual state leadership conference.

The FHA was an organization sponsored by Ms. Anita O'Brien for those students taking a home economics class. The FHA attempted to provide opportunities for individual growth in personal, family, and community living. The FHA had a calendar sale. The group's motto was "Towards New Horizons."

The FTA began in the thoughts of two business teachers, Mr. Mark Chalmers and Mrs. June Owens. The group held workshops, professional lectures and other social activities. Mr. Chalmers and Mrs. Owens said their aim for the club was, "To help expose the members to society and help them develop a sense of the modern world."

FILM MAKING, FOOTLIGHTS, PHOTOS AND FISH

What do the Audio Visual crew, the Light and Sound crew, the Photography Club and the Fishing Club have in common? They are all clubs that not many people know about.

Though the A.V. club was small this year, its members were very hard-working. They took videos of the Homecoming Parade which were edited, completed and shown on the school television channel, WJC-TV, channel 37. The goal of the A.V. club was to help students learn about and have the experience of working with television production.

The Light and Sound Crew was a group of students who helped to make the performances in the auditorium come to life. Helping the performers to look and sound their best, the club was responsible for everything from assemblies to the Senior Play and the Spring Musical. The club was sponsored by Mr. Ed Qualtrough.

The Photography Club was a newcomer this year. Its members were usually seen with camera in hand shooting pictures of some unsuspecting soul. Their major project this year was raising money for better equipment in the dark room.

And last, but definitely not least, was the Fishing Club. The goal of this club was to have fun and fish, fish, fish. The students met on weekends at the park. Divided into teams, they fished for two hours and at the end, whoever had the most fish, won. Each team was required to have one female fisherman, and there were four fishermen to a team. — Jennifer Thompson and Pam Guice

TIME, TEMPO AND TECHNIQUE

From a room filled with chairs, music stands, and instrument cases flung open, students could often hear music. And who was supplying the music? The band, of course! The band was found at football games, pep rallies, parades, and concerts. Preparation for these events took time and hard work.

The year began with a week of band camp where the band and auxiliary squad spent seven hours a day learning the halftime show. They participated in six home football games including the homecoming game and parade. The band also marched in William and Mary's Homecoming Parade and the Williamsburg Christmas Parade. On October 6, they went to Charlottesville and participated in the Charlottesville Cavalcade marching competition.

November marked the beginning of concert season; the first concert was the Annual Christmas Concert. A good part of second semester was spent preparing for District Festival. The last concert of the year was the Spring Awards Concert.

As well as these events, individual members participated in the Regional Band Auditions and Solo and Ensemble Festival. The band ended the year by peforming at the graduation ceremonies.

The Jazz Band was also hard at work. Their practices started with Jazz Workshop in August. Their first performance was for the countywide teachers' meeting. They also played for the Occasion for the Arts. — Jenny Thompson

NEW MELODIES AND MEANINGS

The Lafayette Choral Department was very busy this year. They performed in several places around Williamsburg, including Christmas caroling at the Williamsburg Lodge, 1776, The Cascades, the Colonial Williamsburg Courthouse and at the Fort Magruder Inn. For the Annual Christmas Concert they took on a challenge and performed three selections from Handel's "Messiah." They also held their Annual Spring Concert in May. New York City was the destination for their Annual Spring Trip which they raised money for by candied apple sales, cookie sales, candy bar sales and singing Valentines.

The choir did very well in the Regional Auditions. Lafayette received some of the highest scores in the district. Two students, Randy Hall and Linda Jo Smith, were selected for the European Chorale, a group chosen from the entire state which toured in Europe during the summer of 1985. — Jenny Thompson

EXTRA HOURS EARN RESPECT AND AWARDS

"People don't realize how much effort goes into the newspaper because most people are at home eating dinner in the evening, while we're still at school working on our pages." Editor Than Axtell summed it all up with these words.

The newspaper staff began working in August, and continued through June to put out six issues of the Lafayette Ledger. The newspaper incorporated pictures, opinion/editorial pages, features, sports, and comics to make it a success.

But it was a success in more ways than one. Not only were the students and teachers impressed, but the Ledger also won first place at the VHSL Publications workshop contest at the University of Virginia, and earned an International second place as well.

When asked about working on the Ledger staff, Than explained, "During the final days of pasting up the graphic design of the Ledger before it goes to press, staffers work until the wee hours of the night to meet the following day's deadline. An average paste-up session starts at 2:15 p.m. and lasts until anywhere from 9:30 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. Ledger editors put in over 100 man hours of writing, editing, and pasting-up an issue."

— Jennifer Helsel

Ledger members Than Axtell, Ashley Ryland, and Chris Hancock are hard at work during one of their after school meetings.

"Who says being Ledger editor is serious business?" thinks Than Axtell.

MARQUIS MOVES OUT IN NEW DIRECTIONS

Working on meeting the deadline, Jackie Mather studies her layout.

"Is this really our yearbook staff?"

Work on the 1985 yearbook began early in the summer. Members and sponsors met during the summer to get organized and attended a workshop at the University of Richmond to prepare for the work ahead. Staff members started selling ads to area businesses long before school began.

"Where are those sports pictures?" "How can I write about the CHROMES club when I've never even heard of it?", "Does anybody know who the girl in this picture is?" Hysterical shouts like these could be heard coming from the yearbook room during 4th period about everyday.

It was obvious that putting together a yearbook was not all fun and games. There were yearbooks to be sold, pictures to be taken, layouts to be designed, sheets to be typed, articles to be written, and teachers and coaches to be interviewed.

Editors Jackie Mather and Jennifer Helsel, Sponsors Ms. Sarah Kranbeuhl and Mrs. Nancy Bradshaw, and staff members worked after school and on holidays to meet the upcoming deadlines. When the work was finally over, the staff relaxed and hoped they could hold or better their 2nd place standing at the VHSL competition at UVA in June. — Jennifer Helsel and Jackie Mather

SERVICE CLUBS TAKE CHARGE

The Student Cooperative Association, or SCA, was Lafayette's student government. Elected to serve were: David Hanny, President, Leah Neilson, Vice-President, Christie Huckins, Secretary, and Hannah Allport, Treasurer.

Together the officers worked with class representatives and Mary Spiri, their sponser, on various projects. Major activities included homecoming, food drives and the selling of refreshments at football games.

Another club dedicated to service was the Key Club. Headed by David Hanny and sponsored by Gary Driscoll, the Key Club helped the surrounding community as well as Lafayette.

Among their year long projects, the highlights of their service career was a Christmas party given to the children at Eastern State Hospital. Another function attended by the Key Club was the National Key Club convention held in the spring. — Elizabeth Engelken

USING THEIR HEADS

The Battle of the Brains was a team of Lafayette students who participated in competitions with surrounding schools, answering questions that were based on random knowledge. Sponsored by Mrs. Janet Fuchs, one team, consisting of Dan Price, captain, Greg Delos, Emily Parkhany, and Patrick Cherry, competed in the annual Tidewater Challenge. In their first round they defeated their opponent, Norfolk Catholic; however, they lost to Deep Creek in the second round. Despite their loss the team is looking forward to attending other competitions in the school year.

CLASSES

"What? I didn't hear you!" says Mrs. Susan Miller.

FRESHMEN! SOPHOMORES! JUNIORS! SENIORS! 9th graders, 10th graders, 11th graders, or 12th graders! No matter what they were called, they were all a big part of school life. Each student was a member of one group and remained loyal to that group, branching out in New Directions.

One of the main activities of class membership was raising money. The freshmen and sophomores began early to raise money — selling candy and flowers, giving dances and doing all those other money making activities. The juniors continued until May to prepare for the Prom, the culmination of three years of hard work. The seniors started afresh for they wanted to be sure to leave a gift for their Alma Mater.

There's a homework assignment for Sarah Ekbladh, Anne Harris and Aaron Small.

Raising money, therefore, was of primary importance to all the classes.

Spirit Week, the week before Homecoming, was another time when class was a major deal. Each class vied for the Spirit championship by buying Spirit Links for the Spirit Chain. Who won? The seniors, of course!

Everyone wanted his class float to win in the homecoming parade. Each class worked hard to prepare a float which would not only cheer the football team to victory over Kecoughtan, but which would also win the prize as the best float in the parade. Who won? The Senior class came in first with the Freshman class second, the VICA Club third, and the Juniors came in fourth place.

YOU'VE COME A LONG WAY . . .

On November 6, 1984, Americans re-elected Ronald Reagan and George Bush for a second term. But for the females of the United States, the good news was that Walter Mondale, Democratic Presidential Candidate, selected Geraldine Ferraro as his running mate. Ms. Ferraro, a Congresswoman from New York State, became the first woman to be nominated for either President or Vice-President.

In a government class election, Reagan and Bush won, but Mondale/Ferraro got a third of the votes cast. And at least one student was excited about women in high office. "I thought it was good!" exclaimed Randalyn Bryant, freshman. "Ferraro's a woman and it is a step up for ERA."

An eager student seeks the latest political news on Mondale and Ferraro's chances.

THE PUNK LOOK IS IN

Daring hairstyles were in, and one of the strongest, yet most common, was the rat tail. Most people with rat tails wore this style because they were influenced by punk styles but were too shy to go all the way with styles like the mohawk.

A few students with rat tails dyed them different colors such as orange, purple, blonde, or red. The people who looked the best with this hairstyle wore clothes that complimented the style.

For example, large oversize sweaters, big dangly earrings, leather jackets and boots, and exaggerated makeup were good coordinates.

Anyone could have a rat tail. All a student needed to do was let one piece of hair in the back grow longer than the rest.

VIDEO FUN

The score gets higher and higher, as Kevin Doley concentrates.

"You're never too old to play video games. They have a TV game show called 'Starcade' where adults play for prizes!" said Kevin Doley, Freshman.

Video games spread beyond the home TV screen and the shopping mall arcades. "There are Saturday morning cartoons with arcade game characters and breakfast cereals named for the games. The cereal isn't much good and the cartoons are stupid, though," noted Kevin.

Video games provided lots of students with afterschool relaxation. The best games, according to Kevin, were Pitfall I, Pitfall II, Pac-man and Berserk. "They've got the best details, action, and good graphics."

Video games also reproduced! At latest count, Pac-man's offspring were Ms Pac-man, Super Pac-man, Baby Pac-man, and Pac-man Plus.

POSTERS ADD FUN

Posters hanging in teachers' classrooms ranged from rainbows and flowers to cats and musicians. When one student was asked why she thought all of the posters were hung, she replied, "To brighten our day, especialy if it is a bad one."

Another student said, "To remind us that there is an outside world, since there are no windows."

The more popular posters featured rainbows, unicorns, cars, and musicians. The more unpopular ones were of food. "It makes us hungry during class," replied one student.

Students also felt the posters should be changed or rotated every nine weeks or sooner. "Who wants to look up and see the same thing every day for thirty-six weeks?" commented a student. Overall, students agreed with the idea of posters in the classroom. Tammy Simmons.

EASY COME EASY GO

The favorite way for freshmen to spend money was to purchase expensive or sophisticated equipment. Most of those interviewed said that they were saving up for stereos, T.V.'s, bikes, or other related articles. They felt that a quality, though expensive, product was better than a lot of little cheap "toys."

Quite a few girls said that they liked to buy clothes with their money. Others set aside a few dollars for food, mainly after school fast food trips. Some were even saving money with bank accounts and found this came in handy for vacation money.

It seems the freshmen and their incomes were soon parted.

FRESHMAN SCHEDULES

What did a typical freshman do after school? A sampling of the biggest class in the school offered few surprises.

Almost all of the freshmen said that they went straight home by bus if they didn't have any afterschool activities. When they got home, most had something to eat and then watched T.V. for a while. After that, the interviewees said they went "out." Homework and T.V. usually followed dinner, and 10:00 P.M. was the average "bedtime."

Fridays and weekends were significantly different from this, with more time devoted to leisure. For the most part, the average freshman's afterschool schedule was fairly routine and quiet.

ON THE GO

Vincent Jackson moved around a very big school with a little help from his friends. His winning smile meant he was never short of willing assistants. In addition to Vincent's charm, however, there was the added bonus that students who pushed their classmate to his next class got out of class and into the halls a few minutes early.

"Mike May, one of my good friends, is my first choice to help me," said Vincent. Even without Mike's help, Vincent knew he would get to class on time. In fact, "There has never been what I'd call a fight over who'd help me to class, but there have been plenty of fusses!"

THE FLOAT THAT SANK

Fifteen packages of "Mr. Big" paper napkins, a change in themes, and a truck that broke down in Washington three days before the Homecoming parade were only some of the ingredients that went into the marvelous, wonderful, and awkward sophomore float. Effort should be included in that list, too, though admittedly one was hard-pressed to notice it in the finished product. That was because of another ingredient: speed. After their truck was no longer available, the sophomore theme changed from "Rams Blast the Warriors" to "Rams Trash the Warriors." Almost two weeks of hard work were down the tubes. Though the float may have lacked beauty, it made up for it in originality. If anyone thinks the sophomores can no longer be considered competition — they're dead wrong. Chris DeCarlo

THE LUNCH BUNCH

There were a variety of things to do in the cafeteria and Commons during lunchtime. One could socialize, study, sleep, goof off, or watch the remains of someone else's lunch float gracefully down "the river."

It was easy to spot different brands of people. The "wall people" sat against the wall and watched the people go by. The "loud people's" main goal in life was to make noise. One could find bookworms or people cramming for their next test. Some students just liked to go outside to play frisbee, hackey sac, or other activities. Nash Dunningan

YELL LIKE . . . HECK

Yelling may have looked easy, but it took talent. Yelling during a pep rally was an art form all together different, and yell the sophomores did.

While a regular yell was simply stretching one's mouth, throat, and tonsils to their fullest extent, pep rally yelling was done on bleachers in a gym with about 1500 other students and confetti falling on unsuspecting heads.

This, combined with the fact that the number "87" has one more syllable than "85," "86," or "88," gave one an idea of the sophomore situation this year. They did well, though they did not come in first. But the sophomores have improved greatly since last year, and they could just be #1 at next year's pep rally.

Yes, some called it screaming, some called it yelling, some called it racket or din, but at Lafayette, it meant one very important thing — SPIRIT. Chris DeCarlo

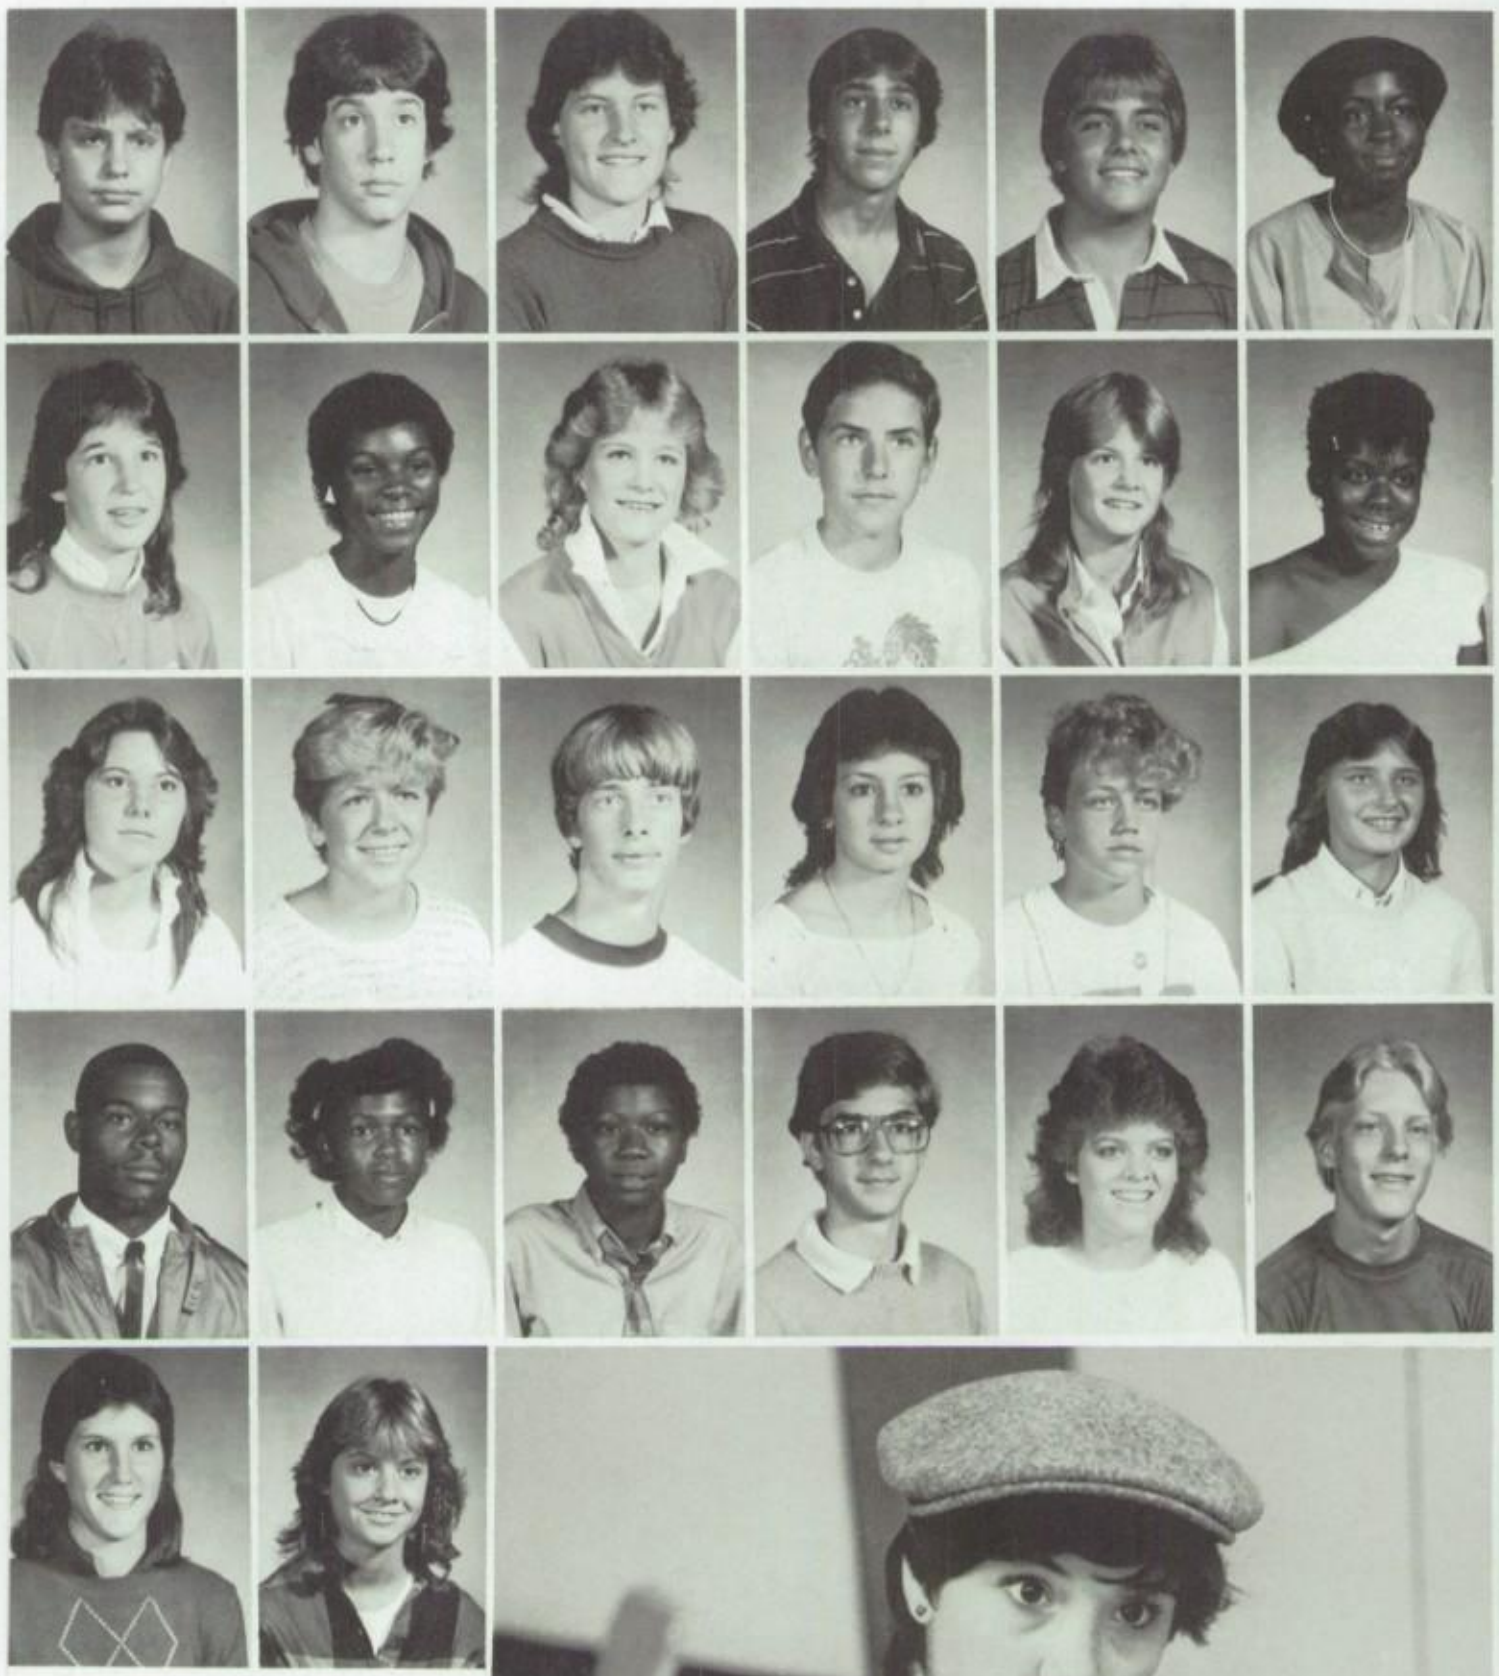
"No, really, I am the sophomore class treasurer," says Tina Douglas.



Could it be that Monica Taylor has finally reached Patricia Barlett on the phone?

REACH OUT AND TOUCH SOMEONE

Anyone who tried to use the phones in the Commons area could vouch for the fact that it took a certain talent. Reaching the phones was not enough. They probably were all being used.

The first step was to wait for someone to get off the phone. Standing in line was not the thing to do. The best method was to try and cover two or three phones at a time, bouncing from one phone to another.

When a telephone opened up, one jumped in quickly and hoped no one was looking when you checked for change in the coin return.

With any luck, the Commons area was empty; however, it probably wasn't and you had to cover your ear to drown out the noise of cheerleading tryouts, wrestling, lunch or whatever. This method might even have allowed you to hear the person you were calling say "Hello," but it wasn't likely. Chris DeCarlo

MUSIC IS HER LIFE

Ramona Taylor, a sixteen year old junior, has done much to contribute to her class and community. Ramona sings and plays the piano. She said, "I've been playing since I was about five years old."

Ramona sang in the Concert Choir. In addition, she organized the Gospel Ensemble both this year and last. In 1984, she sang for the Heart Donation Fund.

Ramona added that even though she spent a lot of her time singing and playing the piano, she still found plenty of time for her homework. She wants to go to college after she graduates in 1986. "I plan to major in music," Ramona replied. Lynn Drewry

The picnic benches were built with students in mind, as Karen Earl and Edmund Bell can testify.

TO DRIVE OR NOT TO DRIVE

The school parking lot is located behind the auto mechanics classroom. Parking spaces were issued to students who filled out an application, had it approved, and received a sticker. The sticker had to be put on the car in a spot that was visible — very visible! Students who had afterschool jobs starting at 3:00 or earlier had the best chance of getting one of these coveted stickers. Lynn Drewry

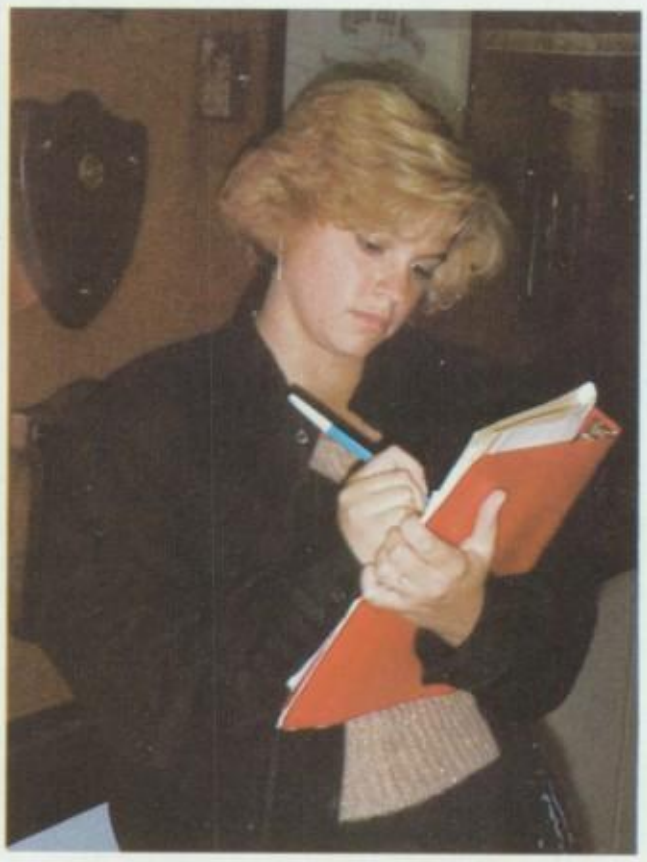
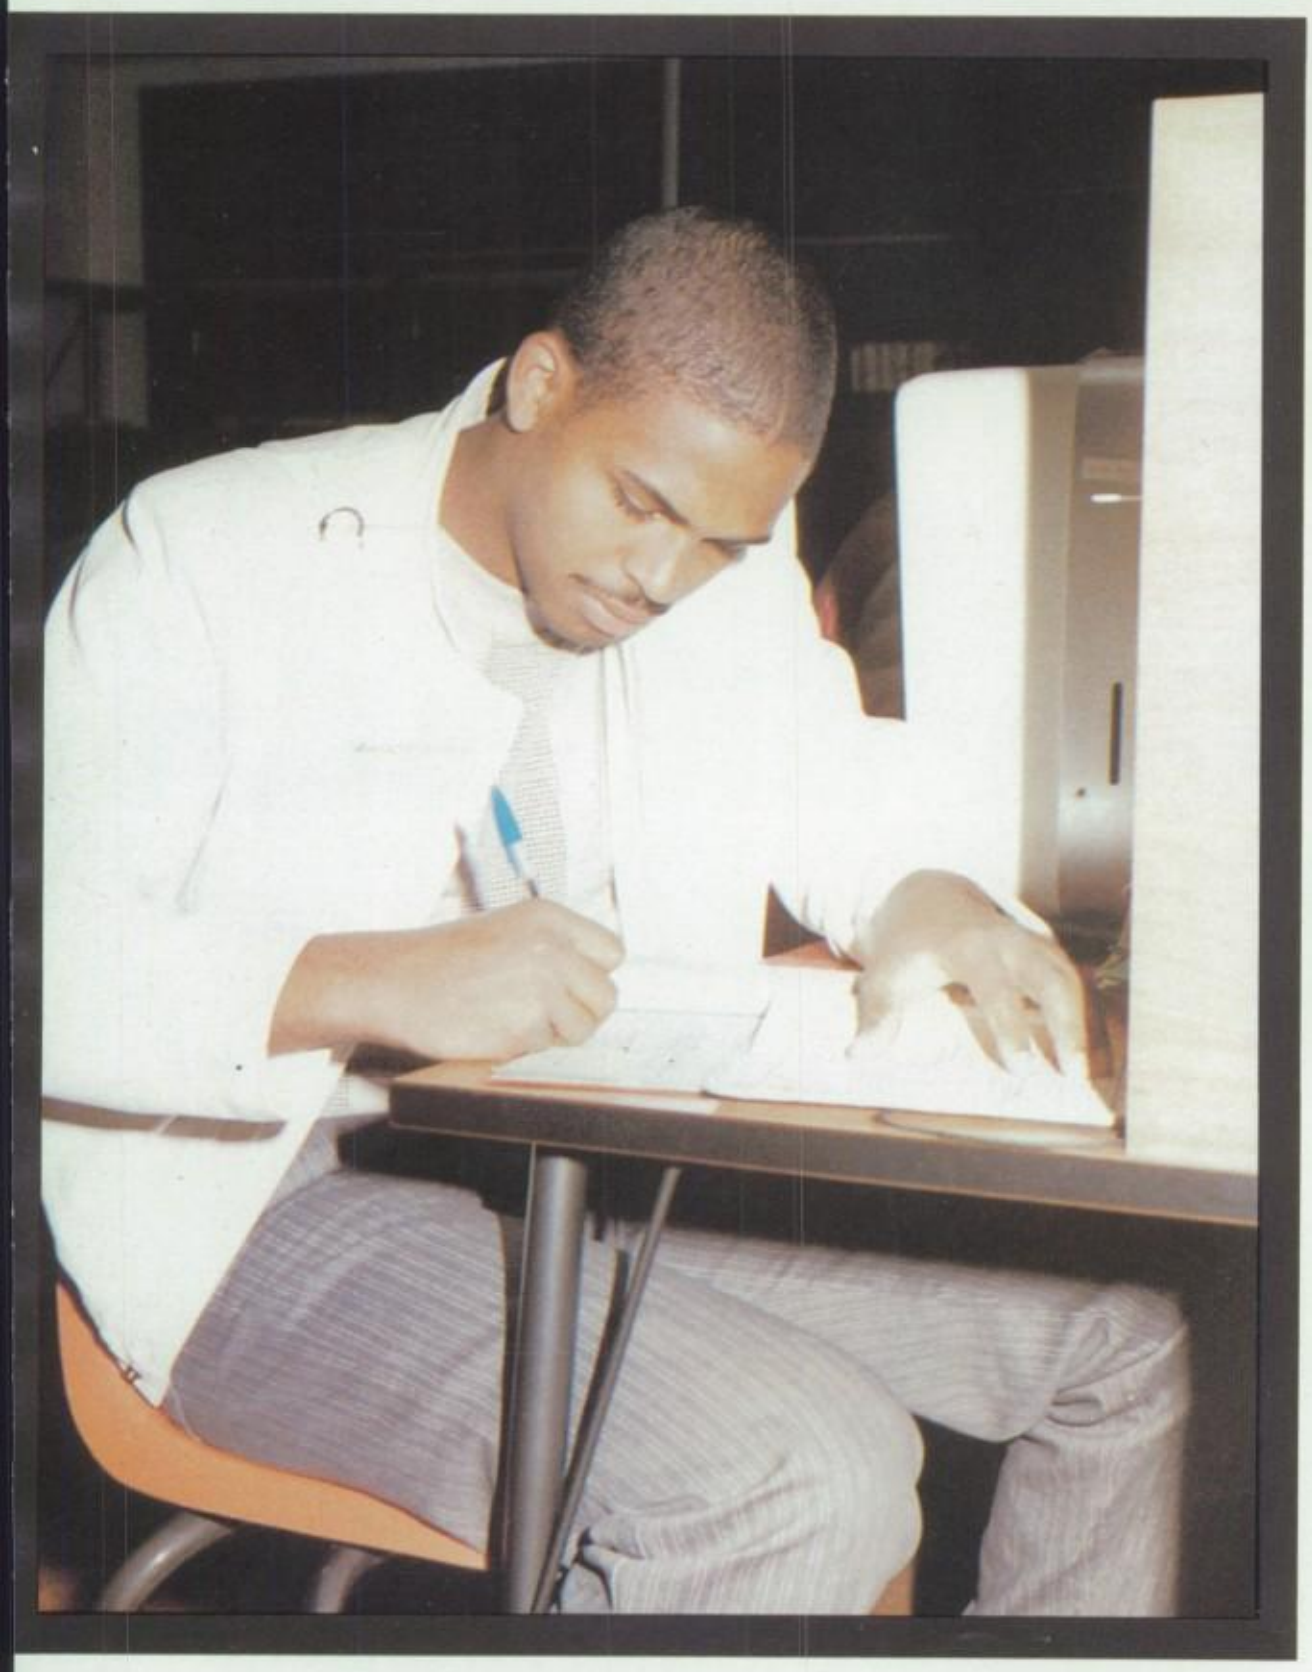
FINAL SCENES





Enjoying the football game with Margy Exton on a cold night, J. R. Deshazo is grateful for his hot chocolate.

"There's no time like the present to do your homework," thinks Paige Sheffield.

Nobody knows what Lesley Brown can be thinking of as she stares intently at her book.

Tim Davenport can be serious when it comes to classwork.

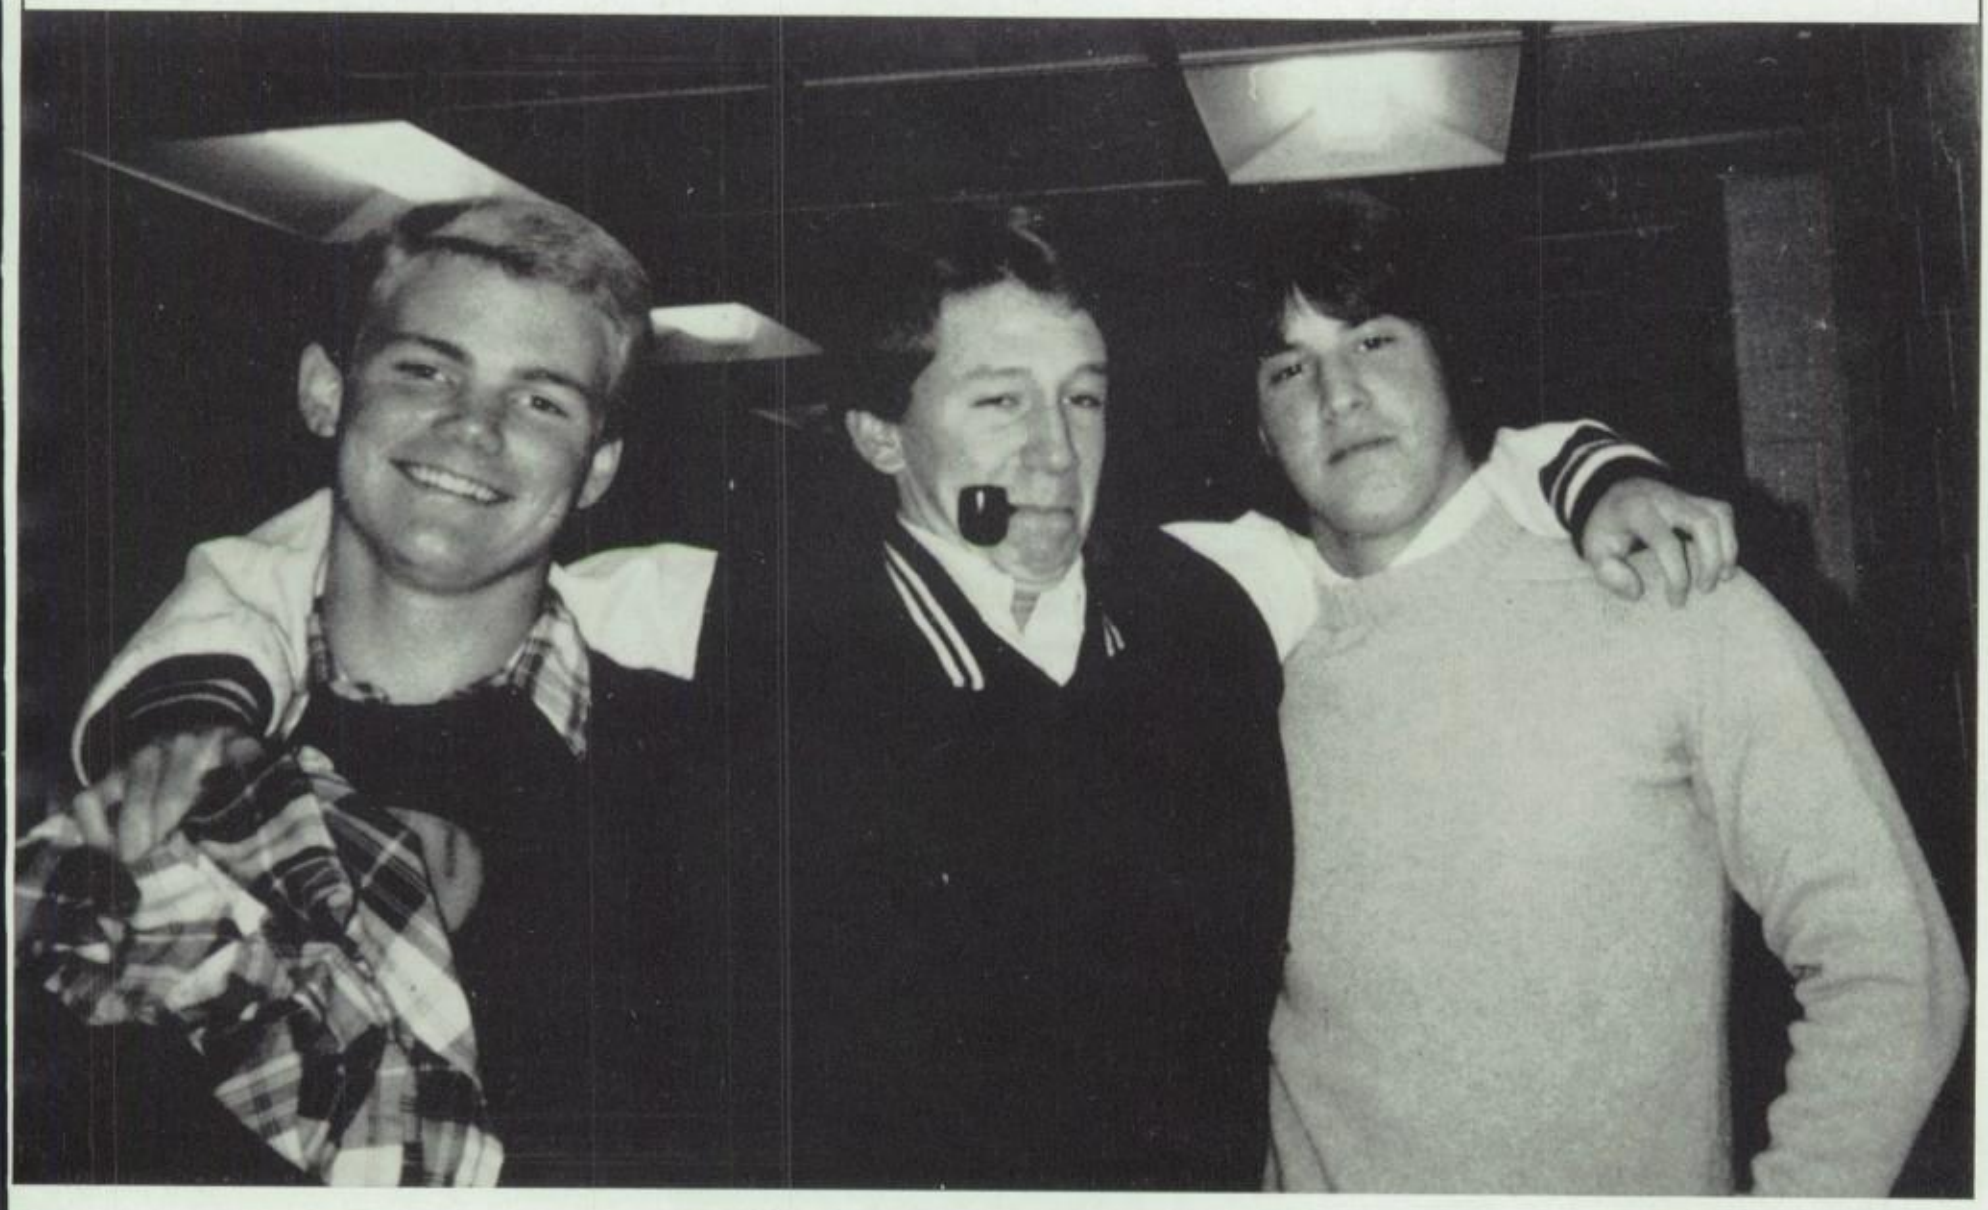
Brightening up her classroom with a smile is Karen Rodney.

Katie Roma voices her opinion.

Laughing during lunch, Billy Blood and Lauriane Myers might be talking about graduation.

Bridgette Stone and Vicki Williams take time out to relax.

DIRECTION



Don't let the smile fool you! Jorin Hood could have devious tricks up his sleeve.

It's hopeless to ask Larry, Curly and Mo (Spencer Gilmore, Than Axtell, Stephen Kiefer) to be serious before drama class.

"Of course there's no film in the camera, Buddy!" Melinda Hazelwood reassures Paul Small.

(center) The night before her wedding, a drunken Tracy has a final fling with Mike, (Jorin Hood), the reporter.

On Nov. 30 and Dec. 1, the Senior Class produced their rendition of "The Philadelphia Story." The play starred Mary Beth Rathert as Tracy Lord, a young socialite; Jorin Hood, David Hanny, and Stephen Kiefer played the three men after her hand.

The play centered around the question of who would marry Tracy Lord — the handsome young reporter, her rich fiance or her determined ex-husband.

Although the play required hard work and long hours of practice, there were still times when the seniors weren't so serious. First of all, during the final dress rehearsal the cast was a little distracted because there was a Redskins game being telecast on a dressing room television. In addition Lynn "Ace" McQuatters, in order to look like an underdeveloped eleven year old, had to wrap her chest in Ace Bandages . . . (the sacrifices of being in the senior play!) An earlier dress rehearsal was an educational experience for Than Axtell, who was previously unaware that "morning clothes" mean a light-colored suit, not pajamas.

When the opening night finally arrived, Director Jack Poland and cast members drew much approval and praise from all who attended — Chris DeCarlo, Jennifer Helsel, and Jackie Mather.

The maids (Mary Fitzpatrick and Barb Lashinger) serve drinks.

Sandy (Nicolaas Hoekstra) chats with his newly arrived guests, Mike (Jorin Hood) and Liz (Anne Peter).

SPORTS

The primary New Direction in the athletic program was an emphasis on greater community support and parental interest. And, as in previous years, the athletic program encouraged athletes to be classroom leaders and exemplary citizens. "Athletics and eduction go hand in hand," said Ms. Betsy Thomas, Athletic Director. "We want to combine athletics and academics."

In the planning stages, one New Direction for area athletes is the Williamsburg James City County Recreation Center which will include the long-awaited indoor swimming pool. Then, swimmers and Mr. Poland won't be practicing at 5:45 a.m. anymore!

Students gave many hours to individual and team sports, bringing the school and themselves well-deserved recognition.

WE'VE GOT THE SPIRIT

The Lafayette cheerleading squad worked this year to carve a name for both themselves and the school. They helped fill the school with spirit. The cheerleaders even started morning pep rallies to get the spirit on the go.

The squad moved out in many new directions. As Karen Tarrant said, "This year, the squads not only achieved great excellence, but they also reached the competitive level with some of the larger schools in the area."

Before the season even started, the squad spent one week of hard practice at a camp on the ODU campus. At this camp, Lafayette was one of five teams chosen to compete on a chance to go to nationals in Dallas, Texas.

The surprising new addition to the squad was the first male cheerleader in Lafayette's history, Than Axtell. He added a great deal of confidence and excitement.

The excellence of both squads was greatly encouraged by the instruction of Mrs. Susan Miller. She and the girls brought the spirit, so the students can keep it up.

BRUISED BODIES, BRIGHT SPIRITS

The 1984 Ram football team ended with a season record of 4-5-1. Although the trip to Cooley Field didn't always end in victory, it did end with the satisfaction of knowing that the players gave one hundred percent in every game.

According to Coach Beers, the most glorious victory was against Benedictine. The game against the giant of the military schools was supposed to be a blow-out. But the tables turned as the charging Rams went on to a 21-0 victory.

The two team captains for the '84 season were seniors Hank Jenkins and Sherrod Walker. Hank Jenkins garnered the Most Valuable Player Award as well.

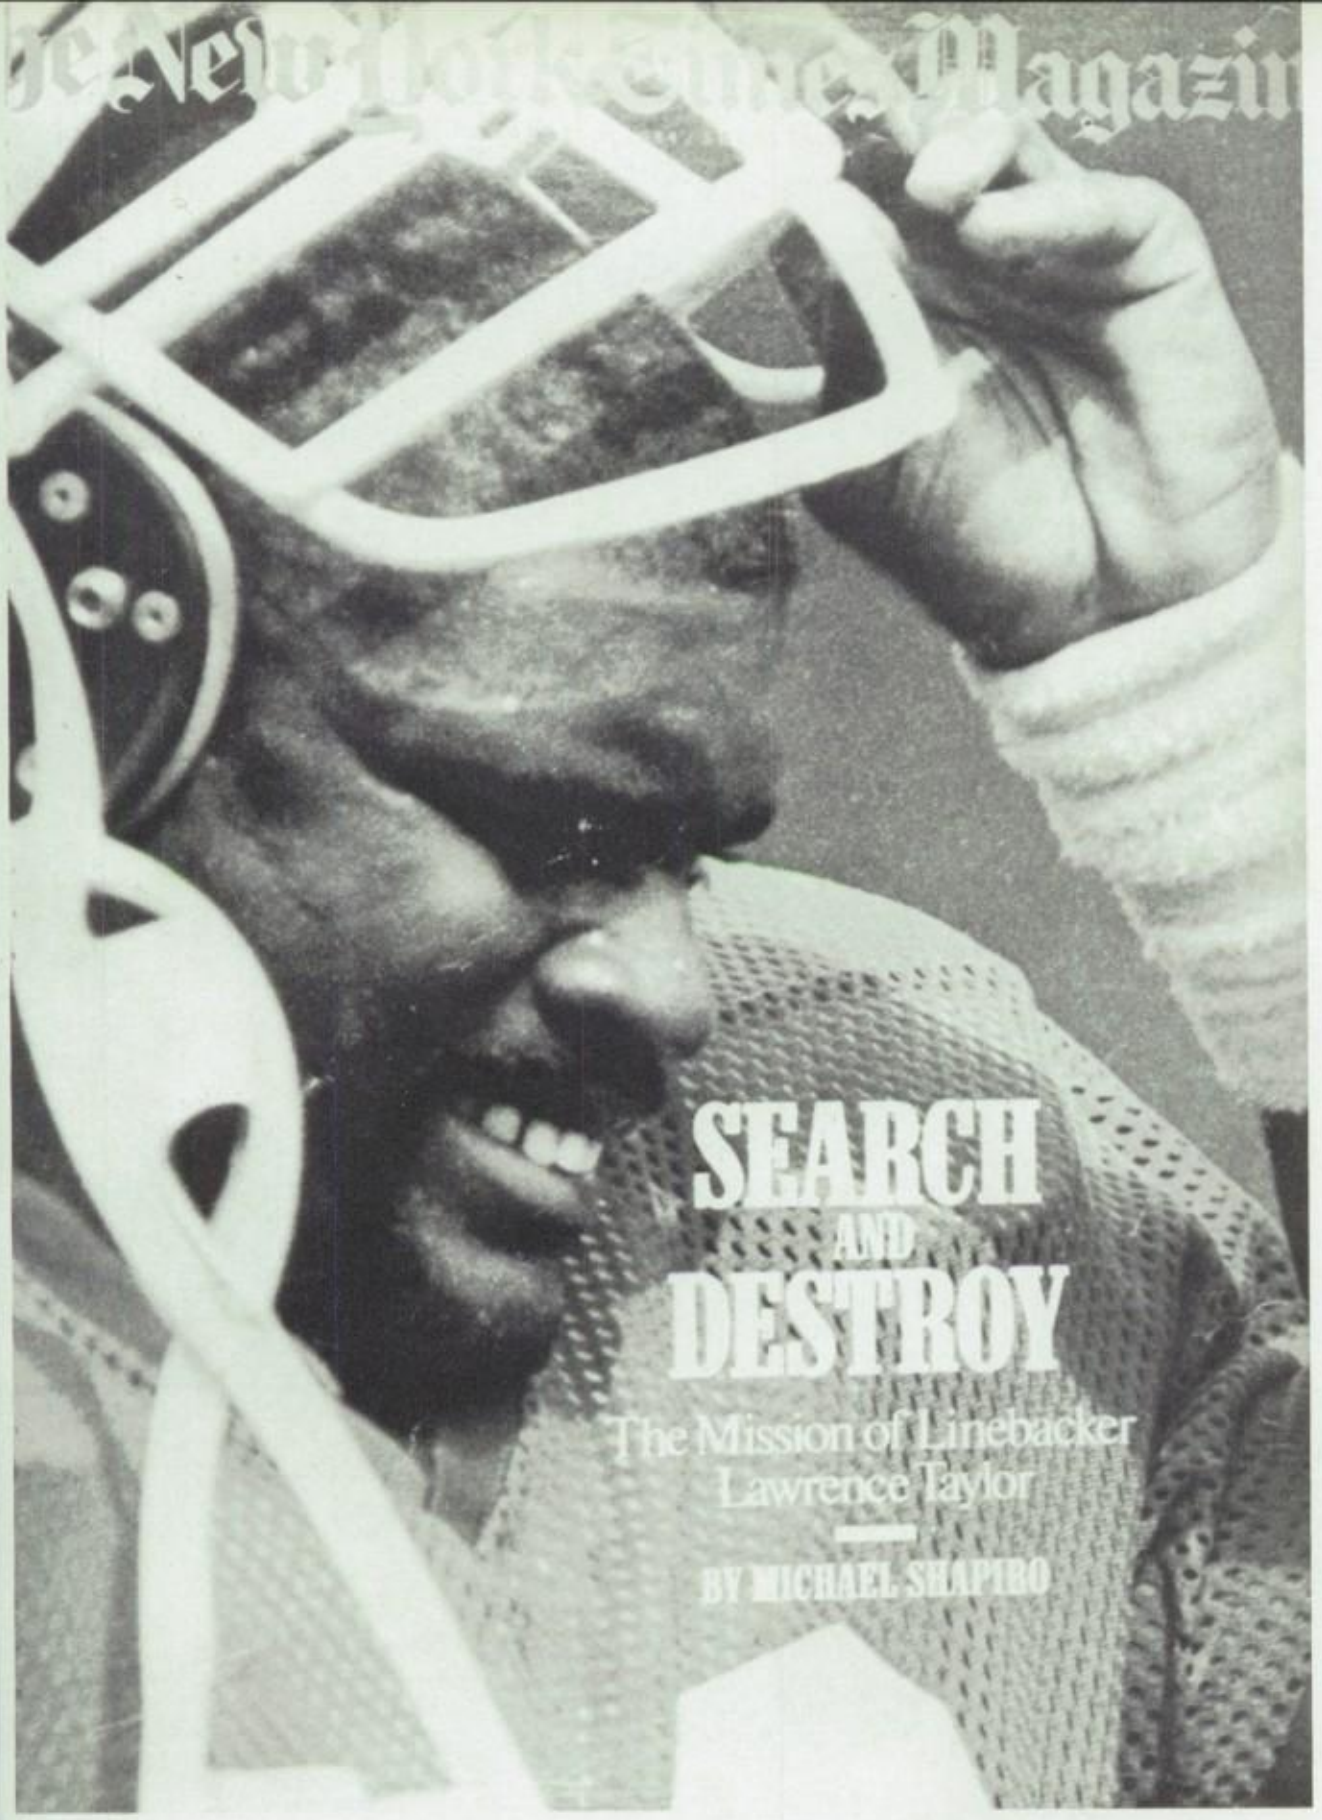
LIFE AFTER LAFAYETTE HIGH

Lawerence Taylor was a graduate of Lafayette in the class of 1976. He then went to the University of North Carolina where he started being noticed by the country. After college, Taylor signed a contract with the New York Giants of the National Football League as their outside linebacker.

Taylor, not forgetting the people who got him started in his career, gave $5,000 to Lafayette last year. Part of the money, $3,000 of it, was divided between a male and a female scholarship for students who planned to further their education in college and had no other financial aid. The other $2,000 went toward a new universal weight set which is being used by the athletic teams.

Taylor has just signed a three year contract with the New York Giants to receive a million dollars a year starting with the next season.

It just goes to show, there really is life after Lafayette! — Robert Matschke.



At the peak of his career, Lawrence Taylor is featured on the cover of the Sunday magazine of America's most famous newspaper.

J.V. EXCELLENCE

The 1984 Junior Varsity Football team ended the year with a winning season. Their final record was 7-1 with their only loss to Denbigh.

The season started in mid-summer with the practice and the heat taking no mercy on the players. There was plenty of pain with outstanding gain as the record showed.

Since Coach Cauthorn wouldn't let up and the players wouldn't give up, the weak got tough and the tough got tougher as the Saturday afternoon games were continually victorious.

The season did not end until late October, and the Junior Varsity Football team ruled the field with their dominating offense and defense.

Forget the rest, 'cause here's the best.

Amy Gallager shows determination as she takes her shot.

Once again, the Lafayette Field Hockey team ended with a winning season, (8-3-1). However, their two losses to Menchville and the surprising upset to Denbigh ruined their chances to get into the regionals.

Despite not getting to regionals, five team members made the All Star team. On the first team were Amy Llanso and Katie Hull, and on the second team were Kim Byers, Tracey Thompson, and Mary Fitzpatrick.

It was practice that started in August and didn't end until late October that rewarded the team with its winning season.

HAVING A FLING

This was a very successful year for the junior varsity field hockey team. Their sponsor, Mrs. Bunny Akers, and captains Lorrie Panza and Tobie Alexander led them to victory in the Tabb Invitational Tournament. The win at Tabb was gratifying because it was the J.V. hockey team's first tournament. They played for the experience and came away with both experience and the trophy.

SERVE IT UP

The team consisted of twelve players, many of whom had not played in the top six before the 1984 season. With two seniors, Katie Roma and Jill Calhoun, and a large number of under classmen, the team excelled to end the season with a 9-1 record. The only loss was a 4-5 match.

In singles, Jill Calhoun and Nancy Haberkorn went undefeated in singles play. Nancy extended her record by going undefeated in regular play for the second year.

In doubles, Kristin Eberdt and Nancy Haberkorn went undefeated during regular play and won the Peninsula District Doubles Championship. This was the second time that Lafayette has won the Doubles Championship.

In summing up the year, coach Betsy Thomas said, "It was a very exciting year with all but two players returning for the 1985 season. The players were a delightful, competitive group of young ladies to work with. Next year looks great and winning the district title is going to be the goal set for the season."

That didn't stop freshman Susan Ries, as she was recognized as the second fastest girl runner in the district.

INDOOR TRACK CAPTURES DISTRICT

"Hard work and determination," surmised Coach Melvin Jones, was the key to success for the Indoor Track Team. Indeed, their persistence paid off for the Running Rams after completing the season with the girls' team holding an 8-0 record and the boys holding a 7-1 record.

This excellent standing enabled both teams to compete in Districts, where the girls held the championship and the boys held 3rd place. Continuing their success, the girls placed 3rd in Regionals and the boys placed 4th.

Traveling to state championships, both teams did extremely well, with the girls placing 11th and the boys holding 9th place.

Coach Rudy Frazier valued the Lady Rams for their hard work. "The players knew the meaning of the word 'sacrifice.' They were always willing to compromise and willing to work for excellence each day." He felt that even at practices the players were happy and inspired.

Coach Frazier, who has been coaching four years, felt his team played their best game against Hampton and their worst game against Bethel and he especiallly enjoyed the first game they played and won against Menchville.

ON THE BALL

Coach Alvin C. Cauthorn has been a coach for six years. This year he coached the junior varsity to a winning season.

"The best games were played against Menchville, Warwick, Hampton, and Bethel," Coach Cauthorn said, "because everyone got a chance to play and our team won. The team was outplayed by Denbigh."

There were fourteen team members, and Coach Cauthorn said all were "Most Valuable Players." When asked what made his team successful, he replied, "The team is the way it is because of the hard work and dedication the players had. I value their self respect, the confidence that each player has in himself and the ability of each player to get along with each other as if we were a family."

The team was lucky. Only two, Kurt Jimmison and Bobby Swadley, had injuries. The happiest moment, Coach Cauthorn said, "was seeing one of my players become a starter after I'd almost given him the axe at the beginning of the season." — Lynda Byrd

WE LOVE THAT BASKETBALL

It was a very difficult season for the varsity team. But with their spirits high, determination tough, and attention focused on their goals, the team survived the season with no injuries.

Although unlike last year's team with its winning season and great popularity, this year's team was still considered a winning team by Coach Farrior.

When asked why, Coach Farrior said, "No one blamed anyone for our shortcomings. The team just searched for ways to improve themselves. To me, that makes each player a winner."

Tracy Harrod scored 231 points this season, giving him a 12.8 average. Coach Farrior felt that, "there was no 'most valuable player.' Even though they're different, everyone contributed. They cared enough about the game and their teammates to reach down within themselves and give a little extra." — Lynda Byrd

The wrestling team, although young, achieved success. The team was ranked second in the district after placing second in the York High Invitational and fifth in the Green Run Christmas Tournament.

Team members Sherrod Walker and Ernie Panza attributed this accomplishment to Coach Trudgeon's return. "He is a great asset to our team," said Panza.

Despite the fact that there were only four seniors, the team continued to excel because of efforts made by the younger members such as Eddie White and Tim Smith. But success didn't come easily. DISTRICT CHAMPS

Swim coach Jack Poland did it again! Coach Poland got things off to a surprising start by persuading team members to join an aerobics class during the evenings in October. The team gathered in the commons area to get in shape by learning new exercises and dances using weights.

In November, practices changed from dance sessions to swimming at 5:00 a.m. in two different pools, alternating girls one day, guys one day, and the whole team the next. This, coupled with some icy weather in January caused some setbacks, but overall the team emerged victorious. The record at the end of the season was 8 wins, no losses, and one tie, making the team the district champions for 1984-85.

During the course of the four-month season, different swimmers attended special Saturday morning practices, and attended invitational meets at ODU and ECU. The entire team worked at William and Mary basketball games and collected money from sponsors for a 100 lap swim-a-thon. Funds were used to pay for the use of the pools.

The swim team wasn't all hard work though. Coach Poland and tri-captains, David Hanny, Mitchell Thorp, and Jennifer Helsel tried out special ideas for keeping spirit high. SOCCER: NOT ALL FOR KICKS

In the spring the fresh aroma of turned-up dirt and lime chalk filled the air as the soccer team began their first practice on February 20. With the anticipation of starting a new season, the veterans from last year's team remembered the terrific season of 1984.

In the pre-season games, the Rams crushed every team they faced. Although Kecoughtan was favored by the Daily Press, the Rams kept their spirits high. Then came the game between the Kecoughtan Warriors and the Rams. Lafayette defeated the Warriors soundly and finally got the recognition from the press that the Williamsburg team deserved.

In 1984, after winning the Districts, the Rams went on to the regional competition in Virginia Beach. The team won in the first round; then the Rams went back again for the finals. Although losing this game, 1-0, against Green Run, the Rams had a sense of hope, knowing they were a young team. They had lost only two seniors from last year and it looked as if they'd be at Regionals again this year.

Co-captains Teri Hale and Elizabeth Marvin show the team how it is done.

BATTERS UP

The try outs for girls softball began on February 25 with 25 girls vying for positions on the team. Although this is only the fourth season softball has been an official sport at Lafayette, the girls perform quite well in all areas of the game.

This year's team expects to improve over last year's performance because of the return of two star players, Simonsea and Joyce Fowler. The pitching of Anne Marie Hermance will be missed, but several team members are ready to take her place. Last year's team started out well, but all chances of going to Districts evaporated after they lost three times to Bethel.

Coach Hermance, however, is again heading the strategy and is looking forward to a winning season. — Robert Matschke

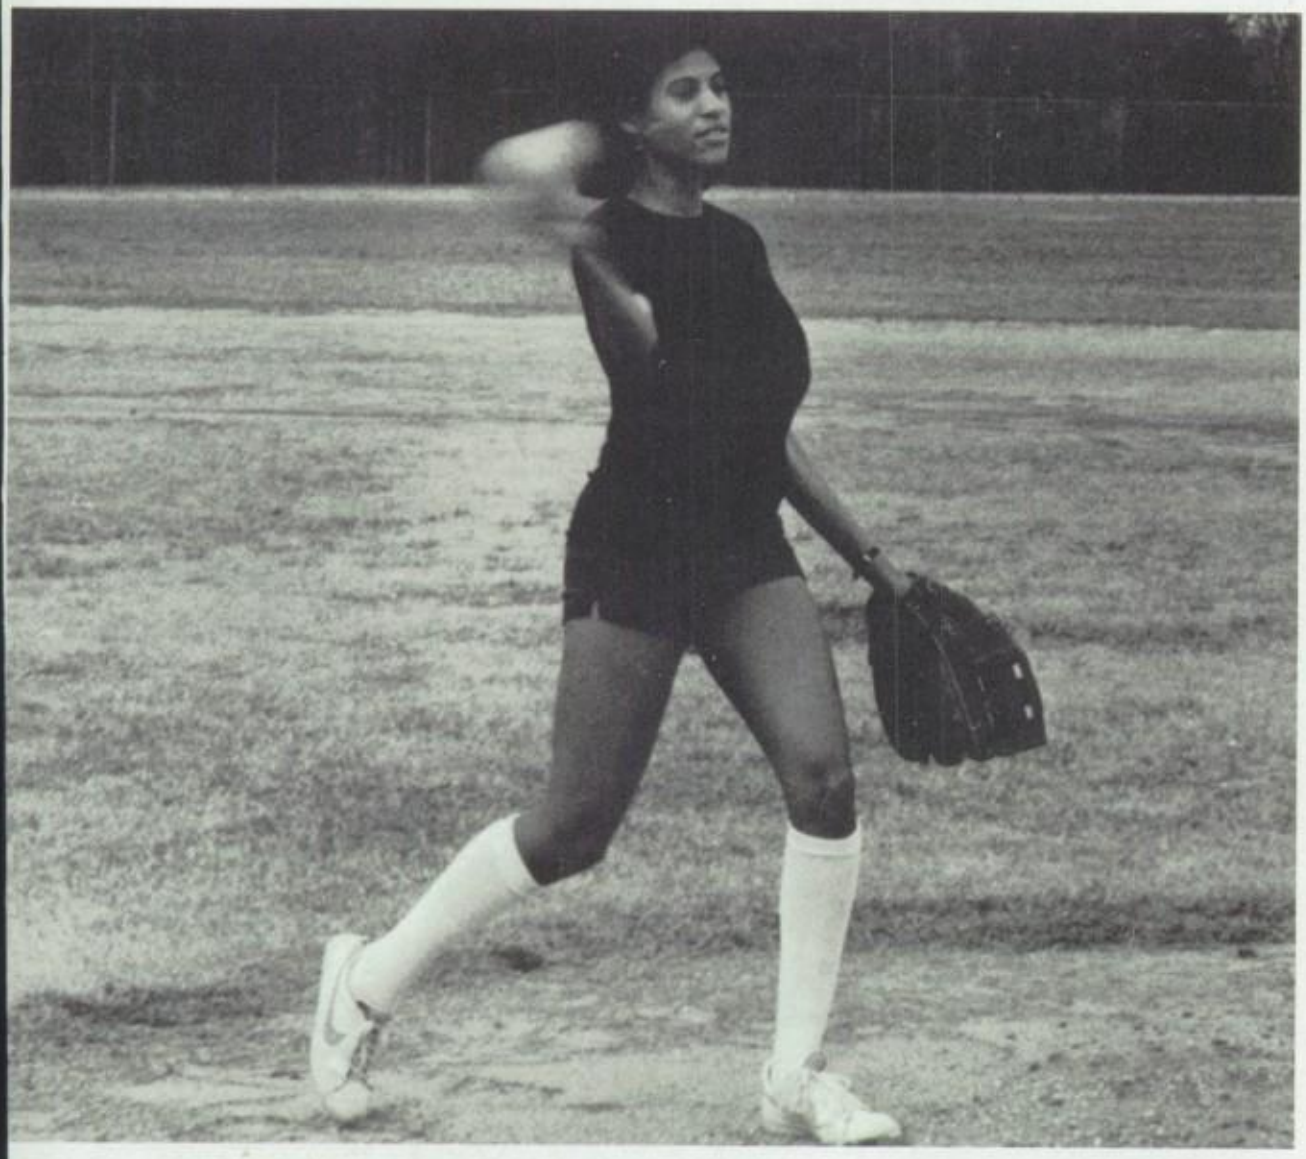
Coach Fran Hermance keeps busy year round with field hockey in the fall and softball in the spring.

In the first picture Tina Minns prepares to make the connection and in the second picture, she does.

Kathy Hermance moves into a catch.

Simonsea Fowler dashes for first base.



oyce Fowler throws a slow ball.

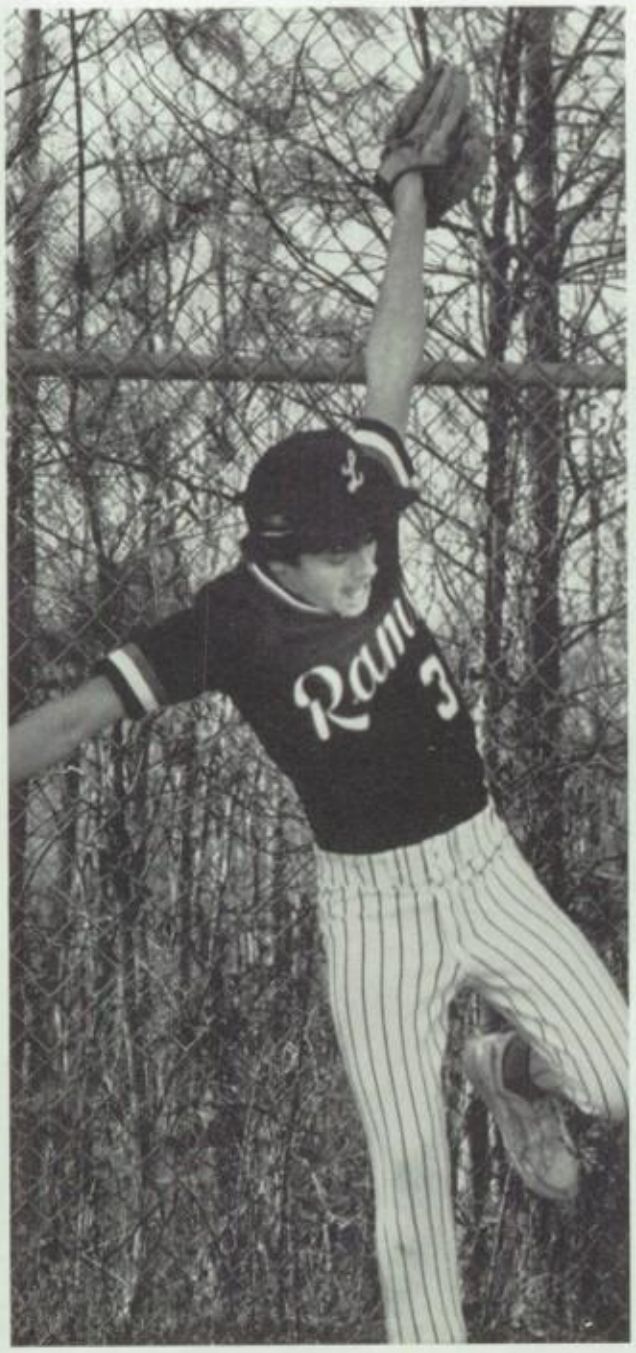
monsea Fowler casually catches the ball.

"Oops! Sorry, Coach! I missed another one," says Troy Walker as he leaps for a fly ball.

All-District Home Run Champion Heath Burcher swings for another home run title.

"This pitcher is nothing but an old tennis shoe," thinks Troy Jackson.

Another hard day at the office for Troy Walker, Gary Campbell, David Barley and Heath Burcher.



As always, Bobby King comes through with a clutch catch to save the game.

In spite of all the pressure from varsity baseball, Todd Douglas can still find time to relax.

As Joe Hamlin slides into home, he thinks to himself, "Man, this strawberry is going to hurt in the morning!"

Rifle arm Duwayne Kilburn nails another one.

WHAT'S IT SPELL?
V-I-C-T-O-R-Y

At a typical afternoon practice in the early spring, the baseball team had batting practice and field practice. For warm-ups, the team ran and stretched. When it rained, the team would enjoy the brand new batting cage in the gym where they could continue throwing, batting, and catching practice.

In the past, the baseball team played a good game against Kecoughtan and Hampton. In 1984, the biggest win was defeating Hampton, ranked in first place. Most importantly, the 1984 squad had the first winning season in Lafayette's history, ending with ten wins and eight losses.

The team set many individual records as well. Heath Burcher held the district record for home runs, finishing with ten. David Lass had the best earned run average, and Robbie Swift came up with the best win-loss record. In one game, Robbie struck out fifteen players.

This year the starters that fans will almost surely see representing the Rams will be Heath Burcher at third base, Bobby King in centerfield, and Chris Hancock on the pitcher's mound. — Penny Pappas Shiela Whiting and Garfield Senior begin their sprint in good form.

Shot-putter Ronald Lassiter knows spring practice is important.

Amy Hedgepath looks to see how well she jumped.

ROUND AND ROUND

Lafayette's Outdoor Track Team "demands respect," according to Coach Melvin Jones. Hoping to repeat last year's performance at districts, where the team captured the championship, Coach Jones is looking forward to the upcoming season. With many proven veterans and hopeful newcomers doing their best, one can be sure that Lafayette's track team will have another outstanding season.

The foursome that is leaping over the hurdles includes Andre Roberts, Patrice Irby, Melody Ellis, and Sonia Fowler.

"Go ahead and jump!"

Caught in mid-air is Larry Echols.

COMMUNITY

Enjoying one of the area's newest attractions, Water Country U.S.A., is Trina Woods

Many students living in the Williamsburg area found not new directions, but giving directions was often their main activity when they ventured out into the community. Tourists are everywhere! But, apart from the hazard of living in a vacation area, many students discovered new benefits and new directions they could go in as residents of Williamsburg, Virginia — colonial capital, college community, and growing city.

Students had unlimited access to Colonial Williamsburg (C. W.) and all the activities sponsored by C. W. For example, they could watch fireworks on the Fourth of July in Market Square or walk down the Duke of Gloucesrer Streer on a cold December night and join in the excitement of the Grand Illumination. They could participate in the C. W. Apprentice Program or watch the Fife and Drum parade through the heart of the restored area.

The students also got a taste of college life from William and Mary, located in the heart of the city. They could attend a "Police" concert at William and Mary Hall, go to Swem Library for research, or use the indoor pools (at 5:45 a.m.) for swim practice.

In addition, students were within an hour and a half's drive of Richmond, Norfolk, and Virginia Beach. Students were also thankful for the jobs available thanks to Williamsburg's thriving economy.

All in all, special activities were available to students living in a little — but big — city: Williamsburg, Virginia. Jackie Mather and Chris DeCarlo "Tourists aren't the only people who enjoy Colonial Williamsburg," jokes Bart Emerson, Tina Beebe and Karen Watts.

HALLOWEEN

Seniors are usually too old to go trick-or-treating; therefore, to celebrate Hallowe'en in a manner befitting seniors, Mrs. Akers and Mr. Poland sponsored a Vincent Price thriller, "The Theatre of Blood." Only seniors were allowed to attend, and they had the option to come in costume. Lynn Drewry, cat; Jeff Phillips, baby; and Glenn Watkins, Indian chief, were awarded prizes for the best costumes.

HE HAS GIVEN MANY A NEW DIRECTION

Mr. Raymond F. Freed, Jr.

Mr. Raymond F. Freed has been a long time friend to the Williamsburg-James City County teachers, students, and parents. He worked with civic groups to see that money was provided for shoes, personal items, and fees for college applications for students of all races. He spent many after school hours counseling with students and parents — not only about academic situations but about personal and family matters as well.

His love of teaching was surpassed only by his love of the individual. He spent many hours going over grades with individual students and helping them assess their goals and evaluate their progress. To him, firmness and fairness went hand in hand. At one time he stated, "Teaching a student is not just on a one year basis. Our efforts as teachers are investments in our society as a whole." He valued wholesome traditions and did his part to continue them.

When his students join the "real" world, they still remember Mr. Freed. Ask any graduate from ages eighteen to fifty, and he'll tell you an incident he recalls from the days he was in Mr. Freed's class — and he'll also tell you he's a better person for having been there.

Mr. Freed has been a principal, a teacher, a counselor, and — most of all — a friend to one and all.

"I got to know Mr. Freed because he was my counselor. He could quiet the class with the expression, 'calm your emotions.' Mr. Freed made a point of being currently well-informed and he had an excellent sense of history."

Betty Joyce (Nunn) McKnight
Matthew Whaley, Class of 1954

"He backed the teacher many times. 'You're not going to treat our teachers like this,' he'd tell students, point blank."

— Mr. Andrew Cypress
Lafayette, Teacher

" 'Are we tuned in today, young people?' He never called them 'students,' 'boys,' or 'girls' or 'kids.' They were 'young people'."

— Mr. James Whyte
James Blair, Class of 1972

"Mr. Freed had a real influence on my family. He taught my aunt, my uncle, my brother and me. I found his class very interesting. I always felt he really meant it when he said, 'My good friend.' "

— Leigh Houghland
Lafayette, Class of 1983

"We occasionally ventured to the 'outer sanctum' to find out our grades. I was always met with a firm but warm handshake. He seemed to be saying, 'I may be your teacher, but I'm also your friend.' "

— Brian Exton
Lafayette, Class of 1984

"He always tried to be fair. He respected his students, and we respected him. He only had to ask us to quiet down once, and there wouldn't be a sound in the room after that."

— Billy Blood and Charles Driscoll
Lafayette, Class of 1985

Purcell,
You're a great friend!
This year d've gotten to know you really well, and d'm glad d did! d hope you have fun in Europe this summer! Get me a postcard! Good luck
next year! ☺ Stacy

Purcell,
you're a super smart person and I know you'll go far in everything you do.
Good luck in everything (though you don't need it!)
mon Amie toujours
Liz

Purcell,
These two years have gone by so fast. I can't believe first semester we had no classes together and now we have many. It is great being more classes. Keep up the great work. See ya next year.
Love ya,
Lori

SOPHOMORES!

Purcell, Thanx for keeping me awake in French! I'm glad we've gotten to be friends!
Trip in Eng. 13 more yrs! Hope to see you more next yr.
Have a great summer!
Rene

Purcell, mon Amie!
It's been fun. I'll miss you seems like we've been in school forever but it's finally over. I'm really glad we've been in at least one of my classes. It's been fun. Keep in touch!!
Au revoir!!
Emily

Purcell, I'm glad we're getting to be good friends again. because you're one of the best. You always pick me up in depressing 4th & 5th, if I've had always been friends. because I know I'll never forget you. I'll know you'll always be a success in whatever you do. "Perfect example of a Golden Ram student"!!

Love ya always,
Kristin

Purcell,
I'm glad you were in my 1st semester ~~English~~ Adm class - Mrs Millers awful! You're a great girl and I hope I see you this summer. P.S. - don't go to boarding school.
Love ya, Brady

Purcell, Yeah I'm glad we're getting to be friends again. I've been a FRESHMAN 4 years & I'm sure glad I'm not a SOPHMORE this year. Have a great summer. Love ya Purcell
Class of '87

Purcell,
So glad I met you this year. Have a great summer and keep up your studies, you "Example of a Golden Ram Student". Call me sometime
Love,
Julie

Purcell,
I'm really glad we're going to be good friends. You are a fun person to be around & give who I know will go far in life!
Good luck
Love ya
